LLU Is Studying Relationship Between Diet, Growth of Girls

A study of the relationship between diet and growth in girls between the ages of nine and 15 is currently being conducted by the Department of Biostatistics and Epidemiology of the School of Health at Loma Linda University.

This is a five-year research program sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

"The study is important because of possible health effects in later life," says David G. Kissinger, PhD, principal investigator and associate professor of epidemiology.

Aimed at determining whether classes of nutrients or specific foods have an effect on growth and development, the research will be conducted mainly at Seventh-day Adventist elementary schools and junior academies in Southern and Southeastern California, and at public schools near Loma Linda.

Some 5,000 girls will be asked to enroll in the study during the five-year period. Growth of each girl will be monitored by changes in weight, height, and thickness of the skinfold on the back of the upper arm.

With the permission of the parents and students involved, trained lady interviewers will ask the girls to recall all foods eaten within a 24-hour period.

"Our research will be totally painless," states Dr. Kissinger. "The primary information we are after is an estimate of the average weekly intake of specific food items as reported by the student and her mother."

All data obtained from parents and children will be held strictly confidential and will be used only for the preparation of statistical reports, in which individuals will not be identified.

The results of the study of Adventist girls representing low use of meat, poultry, and fish will be compared with results from a group of girls at public schools, representing standard American dietary habits.

Days at Summer Camp begin with remembering God and honoring country.

Something Special

Summer Camps Children Should Be Together

Every summer is a special summer for boys and girls who attend their conference-sponsored camps.

It is special to them whether they are attending for the first time or the second, third . . . fourth . . . or whatever number of times they have attended. For at every camp there is a new, thrilling, exciting adventure that leads youth into a spiritual, mental and physical realm found nowhere else.

In camp they are close to the Creator's handiwork, and the spiritual lessons learned are implanted in their young, pliable minds to remain and endure time.

What fun to study nature firsthand, not just from some textbook! What excitement generates the thrill of discovery when a boy or girl sits in a saddle astride a real horse!

What confidence grips a young body that learns to swim or dive! Even the thrill of history can come alive when camping in a frontier village in an Indian teepee; and what comfort fills the soul when Christ knocks on the youthful heart's door of a boy or girl.

Every night when the campfire crackles and snaps, and flames play ghostly silhouettes among the campers hovering near to feel its warmth, the story teller or camp pastor becomes a voice from God, or the voice of a missionary thousands of miles away, or even a voice from real life . . . past, present, or yet to come.

But the most important fact about summer camps are the boys and girls; for camps are not counselors, buildings, mountains or lakes.

Camps are not the hikes or the games, but they are the gifts God has given us . . . our children.

There could be no camps without them.

Won't you see that your children are at camp this summer? You can ensure they will be by contacting your local conference youth department for information and dates on its coming summer camping program.

Spanish Work Continues Growth

Under the blessing of God, baptisms among the Spanish churches continue at an all-time high.

Total accessions to the Church during the first quarter of 1977 reached 301—119 more than for the same period a year ago.

In the most recent reaping series conducted by Union Spanish Coordinator Eliezer Benavides and Pastor Raul Sánchez, 16 have been baptized and another 51 are in preparatory studies. Elder Sánchez and Lay Leader Eustano Hernández are continuing the studies at the Los Angeles Central Spanish church three nights a week.

Elder Benavides, meanwhile, has begun a reaping effort in the Lodi Academy chapel, 1230 South Central, for interests in the Stockton-Lodi area. Meetings are being held nightly except Monday and Thursday at 7:30, through May 30.

Spanish baptisms during 1976 equaled 1,435 of the Union's 6,571. This year's goals set by Spanish-speaking pastors exceed 1,800.

Your prayers are solicited for the Spanish-speaking of our population that the outreaches of laymen and pastors may find all those seeking to understand the Bible.

Al Día also remains on Channels 34, Los Angeles, and 20, San Francisco, to attract interest.

Theme of the 10-day meet will be "In Preparation for Christ." Classes, workshops, and meetings will cover the following subjects: "How to Overcome Loneliness," "How to Deal with Mental Depression," "Self-acceptance," "How to Communicate with Your Children," "Personality Development," "The Role of Diet and Health in Preparing a People for Christ's Second Coming," and "Last Day Events."

INSPIRATION SAYS

"Truth has a power to elevate the receiver. If Bible truth exerts its sanctifying influence upon the heart and character, it will make believers more intelligent. A Christian will understand his responsibilities to God and to his fellow men if he is truly connected with the Lamb of God, Who gave His life for the world. Only by a continual improvement of the intellectual as well as the moral powers can we hope to answer the purpose of our Creator."

It's No Secret

Camping Combination Is Super

It's no secret, Wawona has a lot going for it.

It is the only Adventist camp located inside a national park. Yosemite's thrills are Wawona's "frills."

It is the oldest Seventh-day Adventist camp. Established. Rich with history . . . and camping "know-how."

Wawona sports something else "super"—the only Adventist camp with specialized ministry to multi-handicapped individuals. Christian Record Braille Foundation's Nu-Vision Camp is headquartered at Wawona—nationally unique, drawing campers from throughout North America.

What makes Wawona really "super," though, is not its Alpine splendor, creative fellowship, progressive programming and memorable spirituality.

It's the people. "Super" people of all ages, races, interests. Their dedicated zeal for their camp shows in continuing facility improvements, accelerating attendance, misty eyes pride-filled at the mention of "Wawona Dome."

Central has super people, so Wawona is a super camp. And that's a super combination!

Ken Veal, Camp Director

"No earthly power or skill or learning can supply the place of God's immediate presence."

4 Testimonies, 533

Camping includes Indian Village campfire tales.

Yet its ideas are new . . . a unique blend of "what works" and "what can work." Wawona campers find Biblical basics experienced in a kaleidoscope of new adventures. Maybe that is why Wawona camps each year get bigger and bigger . . . and bigger.

Wawona's a multi-service camp, too. It's not just for younger children. Families love it. Churches, schools and special groups clamor to use it. People plan vacations to see it. Teens and young adults enjoy it (11 special Senior Youth Retreats in 1977 alone will draw ethnic youth groups, singles, young marrieds, students from Adventist—and non-Adventist—campuses).

Wawona is rapidly becoming more than just "Junior Camp." That's why a new camp sign proclaims it a youth camp and convention center.

Proctor Heads Health Services

Stoy E. Proctor, Jr., now directing the Central California Conference Department of Health Services, is representative of a growing group of Adventist ministers with training in health as well as theology.

Not only does Proctor hold a master of divinity degree from the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary, he has earned a master of public health degree from the Loma Linda University School of Health.

Proctor entered denominational service in his native Texas in 1972. He went to the Illinois Conference in 1973 as Health Services director. He was ordained in 1975.

He is the author of the little paperback book Unmeat, published by Southern Publishing Association.

Applications from Central members for housing at their 99th camp meeting are pouring into Information and Locating Service.

Non-Central members may apply on or after May 31. What housing will be available at that time remains to be seen. It's for sure that all cabins will be taken, as well as RV spaces for specific unit lengths.

Information Service personnel will not begin actual space assignment until applications have been reviewed and receipts issued.

Program committees continue the work of lining up speakers and events that will make Soquel '77 a camp meeting to be remembered. According to President Charles Cook, "Camp Meeting College" may be able to offer up to five classes this year.

MBA Will Feature Fine Arts Festival

Monterey Bay Academy will present a festival of fine arts, Sabbath, May 21, featuring campus musicians and artists.

According to Music Instructor Bruce Wilson, the festival will open with a 4 o'clock concert of sacred music presented by the MBA choir and The Oceanaires, both groups directed by Arladel Nelson.

Wilson will lead the Westwinds Concert Band in the evening program, which will feature the presentation of the John Philip Sousa Award to the year's outstanding band member.

The festival will conclude with an art exhibit and reception. Art Instructor Donna Fisher will show the work of students in her classes and present awards for outstanding achievement.

Anza Outreach Draws 40 Persons

Forty people were in attendance at the first service of the Anza Branch Sabbath School in the Anza Community church on April 2.

In October of 1976 Elder Robert Cowan and Glenn Chinn of the Hemet Church began holding prayer meetings in the home of Ivan and Joy Graham at Pine Springs Ranch. With the approach of the Christmas holidays the meetings were discontinued.

But this was not enough for Maudie Lovell and Jewel Collins, two Seventh-day Adventist sisters living in the Anza area. Last January these ladies suggested to Pastor Cowan and Brother Chinn that these meetings should be continued in the Anza area and offered their homes as a meeting place.

Meetings were resumed and became not only an inspiring Bible study but also a social hour for the community. With the close of the study, Maudie and Jewel served refreshments for the fellowship time.

By the second meeting in February, 17 people were in attendance. Discussion on the "Millennium," "Secret Rapture," and "the New Earth" were enthusiastically pursued.

Those present became aware of their need for more study.

One Baptist couple admitted they had both spent the better part of the previous two days in prayer and Bible study on the "Millennium."

"We are seeking the truth," they stated.

"What better way to start the first meeting of this congregation than a baby dedication," stated Pastor Cowan. Eighteen-month-old Eric Martell, son of Brian and Vickie Martell and great-grandson of Jewel and Emmett Collins, was dedicated to God.

Services will be conducted in the Anza Community Church every Sabbath morning with Sabbath school at 9:30 and worship following at 11 a.m.

Anyone visiting in the Idyllwild, Pine Springs Ranch, or Anza area is invited to attend.

Members of the Hemet congregation, crowded into two worship services, also conduct a Branch Sabbath School at Homeland.

Student Salespersons Need Lodging

Would you be willing to spend 40 hours per week going house to house visiting the homes in your community?

There are over 75 students who would. They will be active missionaries in the cities and towns of our conference, if we have the support of our faithful members.

They have two definite needs which only you can supply:

1. Housing—Due to the missionary nature of this program, student literature evangelists receive no subsidy of any type for housing.

Being away from home is quite a sacrifice in itself for many of these students. By "adopting" these students into your home for the summer, you can provide the warmth and encouragement so needed in this work.

These students are committed Christians and will be a good

STUDENTS at the Twentynine Palms school love music. Through a variety of projects to earn money, they have saved enough to buy each student a guitar. They are taking music instruction and are already able to play accompaniment to several songs about God's love.

Five Baptized at Vista

Twenty-five responded to the invitation to unite with the Remnant Church as a result of the Voice of Prophecy meetings held recently in the Vista church by Evangelist Dick Rentfro.

"I think probably one of the most interesting stories to come from these Vista meetings," says Elder Rentfro, "concerns Mrs. Doris Noble who finished the Voice of Prophecy Bible Course 20 years ago and only now is united with the Remnant Church.

"We wonder how many more there are who are waiting for the invitation to be gathered in. These people know we have something, and that is we love the Bible."

Only five of the total number have united with the church formally by baptism or profession of faith at this writing. However, another 10 will be added later this month.

influence on your own children. All they ask is a place to sleep. They will provide their own food or pay you for food if you wish to provide it. Or they'll house-sit your home if you are to be gone for the summer.

2. Even "free" literature costs money to print. If funds are received enough, student literature evangelists will distribute an estimated 55,000 Steps to Christ to interested individuals in this conference.

If funds become available, they will also have these books in Spanish to give away.

You may not have the means to heavily underwrite this program, but remember, a gift of only $10 can provide a box of 100 Steps to Christ.

'Silent World' To Be Emphasized

"Hands for Christ," a non-profit, missionary-oriented organization served largely by the deaf, will present its first play "The Beauty of the Silent World" at La Sierra Academy, 4900 Golden Avenue, Riverside, on Sunday evening, May 22, at 7 o'clock.

The play is based of methods of communication deaf people use daily and how they can express their words and feeling to others. The play will include some songs, poems, and performances. Moreover, it will be beneficial for the hearing masses to be aware of deafness and what it is like to be in the silent world.

The cast includes Jim Birchler, sophomore of Rubidoux High School; Gloria Ching, housewife from Santa Ana; Laurence Gallimore, secretary of "Hands for Christ"; Chris Mason, freshman of La Sierra Academy; Marie Robinson, freshman, La Sierra Academy; and Lani Shackelford, Deputy Director of Pathfinders, Arlington Church.

The admission charge benefits will go to the deaf mission work. It will be $1.50, adults; $2, couples; $1, students with I.D.. Children under 12, free.

Pilot SETAC Program Is Held

The pilot program for the Southeastern Training Action Center (SETAC) took place April 3-8. Meetings were held in the Helen Rice Residence, Paradise Valley Hospital.

Elder Ed Huston, director of the center, led out in the instruction, assisted by other leaders in the art of witnessing.

Three areas were represented: Azure Hills, Paradise Valley, and the new San Diego area Filipino work.

Quoting from the lay ministers and pastors who participated: "It has built my confidence in the plan of leading people to Christ." "I am excited about the lay ministry." "It has offered informative classes and inspiring field work." "I learned of an organized way to help new believers." "Even I have an important mission to accomplish for my Lord. . . ."

"Let the student take the Bible as his guide, and stand firm for principle, and he may aspire to any height of attainment." Messages to Young People, 262

Ten were in attendance at the pilot SETAC session.

Summer Camp Meant Finding Christ

"I don't want to leave here." That's what she said as she sat on her suitcase waiting to go home.

Linda arrived at Pinecrest Camp on a summer Sunday morning and stared at the "giant trees that keep going up forever," as she described them. She lived in Oakland's "asphalt jungle" and was not from a Christian home.

Her eager personality was soon felt throughout the camp. To be asked—to be needed and appreciated—was exhilarating. She was the first to volunteer when her counselor needed tasks performed. At Indian Camp one night she even volunteered to participate in Indian wrestling—and became the champ!

Linda grew with the camp program—and with Jesus Christ. The three honors she earned were a thrill to her, and when they were presented on Awards Night and the other campers applauded her achievements, she cried with joy.

Friday morning Linda and her counselor came to visit the director and tell of Linda's desire to accept Christ! She loved her Saviour but knew her family would not approve.

"What shall I do?" was her question. They prayed that Linda would be strong to do right, then walked up the hill and talked and prayed with her some more.

Friday night was Pastor's Night at the campfire. He presented a synopsis of the spiritual thoughts they had discussed during the week. As the fire burned low and the lights were turned off, he closed with a candlelight service.

"If you want to accept Jesus as your Saviour and follow Him, come to the fire now, take your candle and hold it up for others to see," was his invitation.

They began to come. What a thrill! There was Linda in the third row. Would she come? The director offered a prayer for her. The counselor was praying too. Then she stood and reached for her candle.

Thoughts of Linda bring two distinct memories—the Friday night candle service, and the Sunday morning picture of her sitting on her suitcase waiting for her ride home to Oakland. As her counselor told her goodbye, Linda looked up and with tears exclaimed, "I don't want to leave here; I like it so much!"

Linda is a baptized earliteen today. She found fun, friends and—most of all—Jesus Christ at summer camp.

Nutrition Class Held

"Eating Right at Any Age" was the theme for the nutrition class held April 4-6 by Berea Church's Inner City Community Services at the Marina Vista Recreation Room in Vallejo for 30 persons.

The class, under the direction of Mrs. John Hunter, nutrition instructor, emphasized the necessity for adequate nutrition at each stage of life, as each period brings special stresses and needs.

The course objectives were (1) to translate nutritional information into the simple language of foods, and (2) to offer practical guides for meal planning.

Dr. Lee Raymond, Napa physician, and Deanne Nakamura, nutritionist from St. Helena Health Center, presented informative lectures and answered questions.

Topics for the three nights were "Nutritious Main Dishes," "Whole-grain Breads" and "Wholesome Desserts."

Four Seminary Graduates Begin Assignments

In recent months four young men have joined the Northern California Conference working force after earning their master of divinity degrees at Andrews University. They are all graduates of Pacific Union College.

The Larry Mays family

Larry D. Mays began his ministry as an intern in the Paradise Church before going to the Seminary to complete his education. The past few months he has served as an assistant pastor in the East Oakland/Alameda District under the leadership of Elder Paul Curtis.

Pastor Mays and his wife, Lynell Sue (Robinson), have two children, Jeremiah Roland, three, and Amy Sue, one.

Update . . . from the president

At the Conference Committee meeting on May 3, organization of the Glendale Filipino Company into a church was authorized. There are over 100 members in this Company at present, and the organizational ceremony will take place on Friday evening, May 20.

Elder Russel Hagen has been invited to be the new pastor of the Norwalk Church and has accepted this responsibility. He will take up his new duties June 11.

Dennis Nutter, pastor of the Monrovia Church, has accepted an invitation to serve as Assistant Youth Director of the Southeastern California Conference.

Annual Audit. Once each year the Conference Committee spends an entire day reviewing the expense accounts of every conference employee. They also review the conference income and expense statement, the balance sheet, and the expenditures in all the departments and branches of the Lord's work. Elder Cree Sandefur chaired this review of conference finances, and the committee voted to accept the audited statement for 1976.

The tithe fund of the conference showed a $99,000 gain for the year 1976. The non-tithe funds were over-spent beyond the budgeted amount because of additional insurance costs and some used churches which were purchased when they became available at very reasonable prices.

The total result in all funds of the conference then showed a decrease of approximately $42,000 for the year. Your committee, as you can see, has kept the funds available fully at work winning souls, educating children, assisting with church homes for congregations.

We thank God for His blessing over the work in the past year and for the very commendable tithe gain for the first three months of 1977.

More than 150 projects were entered at the Science Fair held at the Glendale Academy Open House last month.

Seventh and eighth graders alone entered over 100, with 50 more from the fifth and sixth grades.

Three grand prizes were selected by Bob Frye, director of CBS News in Los Angeles, and Betsy Hamlin, Home and School president-elect.

Grand Prize winners were Naomi Ikeda for building a model of a complete self-contained solar house, Linda Chalmers for building a still which changes salt water into fresh water, and Kelly Vannix for a crystal garden she had grown.

Honorable mention was given to Neal Walden for building a robot which feeds his cat at six o'clock every morning automatically. Neal's project, he says, was built out of sheer desperation, to relieve him of the responsibility.

Grand prize winners, with their Science Teacher Ben Maxson, will be featured on the "Steps to Learning" program filed by CBS Television, June 2.

Judges Bob Frey, director of CBS news, and Betsy Hamlin, Home and School president, are shown with first-place winner Kelly Vannix (center).

Nutrition, Cooking Taught at Mid-City

Mary Burgess, instructor, lecturer, and author of the book Soul to Soul, conducted a nutrition and cooking school at the Greater Mid-City Adventist Church Betterment Center on March 13-April 3.

Mrs. Burgess taught the four basic groups: Vegetables and Fruit, the Milk Group, Bread and Cereal Group, and Protein Group. She also instructed the class in how to balance a wholesome diet and the values of saving time and money while cooking.

At the first two sessions, a 10-course meal was prepared and served. At the last two sessions, canning and freezing were taught and a banquet was served at the close.

All the classes were illustrated by films, and the 43 students who attended the classes received free recipes.

Assisting Mary Burgess was Leola Butts, communication secretary of the Greater Mid-City Church. The program was sponsored by the Inner City Department of the Southern California Conference.

Camp Leads to Academy

A senior at Newbury Park Academy, Randy Eisenhardt, traces his introduction to Jesus Christ to Camp Cedar Falls.

In 1972 Randy spent several weeks at camp, partly because his mother was concerned about his daily activities while she worked. But when the summer ended, her concern intensified and she expressed this while paying Randy's fee at the camp office.

The phone number and address of Newbury Park Adventist Academy were given to Mrs. Eisenhardt and she immediately contacted the school. In September Randy enrolled as a high school freshman and took up residence in the boys' dormitory.

The next two summers found him at Camp Cedar Falls, and each September he returned to Newbury Park Adventist Academy. Not without much conflict, Randy decided to become a Seventh-day Adventist.

It was his desire to publicly seal this decision at the place where he was first introduced to Christ, so on November 6, 1976, Randy was baptized in the icy waters of Forsee Creek while his classmates and those who had prayed for him looked on—grateful for the Christian influence of Camp Cedar Falls.

In Prison

Reno-ans Share Faith

The Heaven Bound Singers, Pastor Gerald Schulze and Reno Lay Activities Leader Clayton Pratt entered historic Nevada State Penitentiary on April 30 and spent the entire day in singing, preaching and visitation.

Working closely with Prison Chaplain Al Fry, the Reno evangelistic group was invited to spend the day witnessing within the three security sections of the prison—the maximum, medium and women's sections.

It was not without a certain amount of apprehension that the group of 15 entered the foreboding walls of what once was a territorial penal institution. The maximum security division had been the scene of a recent riot which resulted in two deaths, and rumors hinted of another riot being planned.

With this in mind, the Heaven Bound singing evangelistic team entered upon what turned out to be an unequalled experience in witnessing. Songs of Christ's love were presented, along with a Bible message centered on the reality and hope of eternal life. The inmates' response was positive.

Twenty-eight men signed up immediately for Bible courses, and 240 pieces of literature were distributed which should result in more Bible studies. One inmate is now getting a study group together within the prison for the purpose of studying the Adventist message.

A letter written to Elder Schulze by one of the inmates summed up the men's response as they discussed what they had heard and seen. "Those people are for real."

Ed Downs, director of the Reno-based Heaven Bound Singers, promised a return engagement set for September. In the meantime, correspondence courses, personal visitation, and other correspondence will be carried on with the inmates by the Heaven Bound Singers and the Lay Activities Department of the Reno Church.

God has blessed by opening, not only the doors of a prison, but also the doors of hearts. We eagerly await the growth of the Third Angel's Message in this challenging mission field.

Junior Academy Has Bike-a-thon

The Las Vegas Junior Academy Bike-a-thon took place at the Craig Road Speedway. Mayor Danes of North Las Vegas officially proclaimed the day "Pathfinder's Day."

Principal Reuben Kingsfield led the staff by riding 75 miles.

The previous record of 102 miles was broken by Randy Feikes who came off the track accounting for 110 miles.

All on her own, Wendy Sandquist, a second grader, obtained 39 sponsors and raised over $500 to win one of the bicycles awarded to each contestant achieving this goal.

Ninety people participated in the evening, bringing in sponsor pledges amounting to over $5,000, according to coordinator

Wilber Claus. The money was used for expenses at the Academy as well as for the Pathfinders.

An atmosphere like a country fair prevailed as people came and went—some to pedal and others to partake of vegetarian food.

Las Vegas Junior Academy Home and School President Leonard Mills and his staff provided the food. Three groups of counters kept track of the pedalers, each of whom wore a large number on his back.

Everyone enjoyed the exercise, food, fun and fellowship on one of the nicest days of the year.

V. Tuchalski, Comm. Secy. Las Vegas

Judy Christiansen pedals by to be counted. Greg Davis sports a big Number 11.

Five Clubs Reach First Place

Five Pathfinder clubs won first place as Clubs-of-the-Year at the Pathfinder Fair held on May 1. Aiea, Waimanalo, Central, Kaneohe and Waipahu shared the honors.

Japanese, Hauula, Aiea and Kailua won first place trophies for booth displays. Diamond Head, Wahiawa, Waianae, Waimanalo, among others, shared first place in field events which included Trust My Knot, Compass Relay, and Drill Master's Delight.

True Christian spirit of cooperation was evident as everyone worked together to help make the day a success.

If you or any members of your family, ages 10 through 14, are not participating in the Pathfinder program, you are missing one of the greatest blessings that Christian fellowship can bring. Don't let another day go by until you make arrangements to join and support your local Pathfinder Club.

Ron Breingan, Youth Director

Drill Instructor Ron Verano and members of the drill team celebrate Central's first place in the drill-team competition.

Kahului Club Organizes

Silversword Pathfinders have been organized at the Kahului Church.

Staff members include Director Rosemarie Paresa, Deputy Director Elaine Machado who also serves as secretary-treasurer, Boys Director John Uwekoolani and Girls Director Eleanor Bell.

Counselors are Sue Smith, Teddy Gomes, Jeannie Twedell, Fran Dunn, and Alvin Kosaka.

The Pathfinders have already enjoyed an outdoor camp and are looking forward to physical, spiritual and mental growth.

Those wishing to participate

Camping calls for packing—at least planning so you don't forget something.

Maryvale church stands as a tribute to the dedication and determination of members who labored four years for the sanctuary.

In January of 1973 a group of 30 members from the Central and Glendale churches gathered for Sabbath school and church at the Christ United Presbyterian Church, the first Seventh-day Adventist meetings in the Maryvale area.

The acting pastor was Harvey Stephens.

Only a month after the initial meeting, Sabbath school members and a large group of children met with Elder John V. Stevens, then Conference president, as he read the Great Commission—to go into all the world and preach the gospel.

The Maryvale Church was organized at that time.

In July of 1974, with the help of the Arizona Conference, the members of Maryvale purchased land at 65th Avenue and Encanto. In August of 1975, official ground breaking under

Can we count you in for Adventist Adult Education ?

We all believe in Adventist education for our youth. But what about adults? Education should not have to be confined to specific ages or places. The Pacific Union Conference would like to know how many people are interested in pursuing a degree, certificate program, or perhaps just a course or two for personal enrichment.

Both Loma Linda University and Pacific Union College wish to use their resources in a variety of ways to meet your needs and interests. First, though, they must know the needs of persons like yourself. So would you take a minute to fill out this questionnaire, and send it to the Education Department, Pacific Union Conference, 2686 Townsgate Road, Westlake Village, CA 91361.
