"Jesus: the Source of Living Water," is the theme of the multi-media presentation shown inside the Church's World's Fair exhibit. Bible Emphasis Day Set for September 15

Church members throughout the Pacific Union are being encouraged to extend special invitations to their non-Adventist friends and relatives when the Church celebrates Bible Emphasis Day on September 15.

Though Adventists have long emphasized the Bible as a guide to happier living and as the source of Church beliefs, Church leaders voted this special day at Annual Council, believing the time has arrived to commemorate in this special way the broad impact the Scriptures have in the lives of Seventh-day Adventist Christians.

With many visitors expected in churches that day, Sabbath School leaders are encouraged to plan a special program tying into the day's theme. Presentations designed to increase the awareness of the various versions of the Bible or gifts of Bibles to children beginning first grade are just two examples of possible features for Sabbath School.

Many pastors are already planning sermons on such topics as "How to Study Your Bible," "Can You Trust the Bible?" and "Is the Bible Still Relevant Today?"

Adventist Serves as Olympic Interpreter

by Larry Becker

Opportunity to witness for his faith while serving his country, combined with the hospitality of a Swiss church member, resulted in Lindsay Thomas serving as an official interpreter during the recent Olympic Games.

Dr. Thomas, a former missionary to Ghana and the Ivory Coast, served as one of three volunteer French interpreters for the Olympic Boxing competition held at the L.A. Sports Arena. Seeking to uphold his faith during this major international event, Dr. Thomas did not serve during the Sabbath hours, including the Saturdays of the Opening Ceremonies and the final gold-medal bouts.

"No Compromise"

"There was never any question of compromise in my mind," says Dr. Thomas. "I've served as an interpreter for many years and have never done work on the Sabbath. The major corporations I have served have always been gracious and understanding on this point, as was the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

"Two years ago I applied to become a volunteer interpreter for the LAOOC," continues Dr. Thomas. "I have always made clear my beliefs to them, all the while expressing my strong desire to be of service as an American for this great event."

It was while being interviewed for his position two years ago that Dr. Thomas found why his résumé caught the interpreter personnel director's attention out of the hundreds submitted from around the world.

SDA Hospitality

"The interviewer told me that while she was attending meetings at the International Olympic Committee's headquarters in Switzerland, she stayed in the home of an Adventist woman who is a secretary at the IOC," says Dr. Thomas.

"When she saw on my résumé that I was an Adventist, she remembered the pleasant time she had in this lady's home and called me in for an interview out of curiosity. I've been working with the LAOOC ever since."

Dr. Thomas has been performing a number of translating services for the LAOOC since volun-

Thousands Visit SDA World's Fair Exhibit

Seventh-day Adventists are proclaiming "Jesus: the Source of Living Water" at the New Orleans World's Fair in a 20-projector, multi-image presentation.

The 13-minute computerized presentation was designed and produced by Martin-sound Studios of Alhambra, California. It is presented in a specially built theater located inside the Fair's Great Hall.

More than 40,000 persons visited the exhibit during the first eight weeks of the Fair, and 80,000 pieces of literature have been distributed. It will be possible to present Christ to more than 200,000 viewers during the six months the Fair is open.

The talents of many Pacific Union members were utilized in the preparation of the exhibit.

Gene Sasse of Pomona served as director of visual design for the project. He also did some special effects photography for the program.

John Robertson, senior writer for the Voice of Prophecy, wrote the script.

The unique theater being used was designed by Greg Thompson and Franklin Po, architects from the Eagle Rock area.

Shifts of volunteers staff the exhibit daily. At the close of each presentation, viewers are invited to stop by the visitor information center for further information and literature. The Happiness Digest (Steps to Christ), the World's Fair edition of Signs of the Times, and other literature on health topics are given free of charge. A prayer room for private counseling has also been provided.

More information on how to volunteer to serve at the Fair display can be obtained by writing: World's Fair Project, Box 884, Metairie, Louisiana 70004.

More than 40,000 persons have already visited the Seventh-day Adventist exhibition at the New Orleans World's Fair. Located in a prime position in the Fair's Great Hall, the "theatre" was designed by Pacific Union architects Greg Thompson and Franklin Po.

Nevada-Utah Challenges Seen

Two Nevada counties are listed among the ten fastest-growing counties out of all 3,137 in the United States, according to USA TODAY.

In fact, Esmeralda and Nye are number two and three in the U.S.! And therein lies a new challenge for the Pacific Union's biggest little conference. Both are dark counties to the Church—so far as having church or school buildings are concerned.

Towns like Duckwater, Blue Jay, Tonopah, Mosquito Ranch, and Round Mountain; Coaldale, Silver Peak, Lida, Arlemonth and Goldfield need a Seventh-day Adventist presence—through the airwaves, in the mailbox, and at the grocery store. Communities along the Grand Army of the Republic Highway (6) ought to know about Seventh-day Adventist Christians!

Branch Sabbath Schools at Fish Lake Valley by members out of Bishop, California, and Pharump by those out of Las Vegas are not enough. The two Adventist families in Beatty and one at Gabbs would welcome fellowship.

The Nevada-Utah Conference—two states and several California counties or portions thereof—is already challenged in ministry. Its members, though dedicated in personal and financial commitment, encourage your suggestions to span the vastness—even your move to come over into "Macedonia and help us"!

H. M. S. Richards, founder of the Voice of Prophecy, will be celebrating his 90th birthday this year. Shown here with his wife, Mabel, on the grounds of Ventura Estates, Elder Richards will be honored at a special birthday celebration and banquet in September. Pacific Union Representatives Attend Philanthropy Meetings

Institutional development officers from across North America met June 17-21 at Southern College in Collegedale, Tennessee, for the Third Conference on Philanthropy. Attendance at the triennial conference almost tripled from the first session held at Union College in 1978—from 37 to 101 registrants. Thirteen of these registered from the Pacific Union, representing Loma Linda University, Pacific Union College, Glendale Adventist and Loma Linda University medical centers, Ukiah Adventist Hospital, and Adventist Health System/West.

Never before had so many denominational development and public relations professionals come together to discuss the concept of philanthropy and how they could advance the work of the Church by increasing voluntary support for Adventist colleges and hospitals in their respective communities.

Winton Beaven, the conference's keynote speaker, challenged the audience to renew the caring mission of the Church and to "finish the work in our lifetime." Early in his career, Dr. Beaven, who is now assistant to the president of Kettering Medical Center, worked in public relations at Union College. He was the first Adventist institutional worker officially recognized by national organizations as a professional in this field.

The conference banquet climaxed several months of anticipation as the General Conference presented the triennial Trailblazer in Philanthropy Award in recognition of an individual who lends creativity, initiative and consistent professional leadership in behalf of Adventist communication and philanthropy. The honor is especially meaningful because recipients are nominated by their peers.

Presented with this year's award was Sheree Parris Nudd, director of development and public relations for the past five years at Huguley Memorial Hospital in Fort Worth, Texas. Last year the hospital reached a $3 million milestone in funding for a health fitness center, meeting $500,000 and $250,000 challenge grants along the way. This achievement was recognized when she was honored as the "1983 Outstanding Fund Raising Executive" by the Fort Worth Chapter of the National Society for Fund Raising Executives.

Guy Welsh, W6ZTY, will be honored by the West Coast Amateur Radio Bible Study Group in a special silver anniversary celebration in Visalia September 15. Mr. Welsh is shown here by his ham station, where he serves as net control for the group every morning at 6 o'clock.

Radio Bible Study Group Will Celebrate Silver Anniversary Next Month in Visalia

Marking twenty-five years of continuous operation, the Amateur Radio Bible Study Group will meet for a special service September 15 in the Visalia S.D.A. Church.

The group will honor net control Guy Welsh, W6ZTY, of Visalia, commemorating his long-time leadership of the group. Seven days a week at 6 a.m., Guy leads an average of 30 participants through the morning Bible study, utilizing Bible Readings for the Home as a guide. The frequency used for the studies is 147.75-15.

H. M. S. Richards, Jr., WD6-BDZ, a member of the Group, will be the featured speaker for the service. All hams and their friends are invited.

Coming in the Adventist Review

These days the Adventist lifestyle is making news, both in the scientific literature and popular journals. In fact, some non-Adventists are more excited about our health principles than many Adventists! Don't miss the Adventist Review for September 20 for a special section on cancer research, cardiovascular disease, vegetarian diet, weight-control programs, and how to spot a "quack." All these articles have been written for the Review by scientists from Loma Linda University.

$40,000 Raised for Evangelism at Redwood Camp Meeting

Yellow buttons flashing "Helping Others Find Christ" appeared this year at Redwood Camp Meeting. "It all started," says Dr. Caleb Davidian, a retired dentist from Placerville, "when the Conference Evangelism Committee heard that funds for evangelism were limited.

"If the concept of the 'Committee of 500' for Voice of Prophecy and Pacific Union College's 'Committee of 100' could work so well for these projects—why not for evangelism?"

Last year $25,000 was collected for evangelism in one week at Redwood Camp Meeting. With lots of enthusiasm, a large thermometer graph, and a box of yellow buttons, Dr. Davidian again began the campaign for funds for evangelism this year.

The story was told at one of the evening meetings of a little boy who turned in all he had—sixty-nine cents—for evangelism. Someone was moved by the Holy Spirit to make up the difference—$103.31—amounting to two dollars a week for the year.

To the surprise of even the most optimistic, the field evangelism offering went over the $40,000 mark in cash and pledges this year. These funds will be utilized in local Revelation Seminars scheduled throughout the Conference.

Northern California Conference Receives Award for Famine Relief Efforts

The Northern California Conference recently received commendation from the Adventist Development and Relief Agency (ADRA) for the response that community service members gave to help people in the Ethiopian-Sudan territory of Africa. Dr. Leslie Anderson, director of the Inner City/Community Service Department for the Conference, recently accepted a plaque from Lee Grady, director of ADRA, on behalf of the members of community service centers in Northern.

Six months ago the Secretary-General of the United Nations asked the General Conference for additional help for the more than five million Africans who were in desperate need. ADRA indicated that the Northern California and Michigan conferences responded so well that some commendation was in order.

Redlands Spanish Church Relocating

In recent years the San Bernardino Mountain View Church has joined with the Highland Church, taking the new name Arden Hills Church. Elder Ron Watson is serving as senior pastor.

Since this merger a sincere effort has been put forth to sell the Mountain View property.

Seeing the need of a Spanish-speaking Adventist Church in this highly Latino neighborhood, the Redlands Spanish Church has voted to sell its church, purchase the Mountain View church and move its congregation to this wider mission field.

First services in the new location took place on August 4. Elder Eliseo Hernandez is pastor of this Spanish congregation, located at 918 N. Mountain View Avenue.

Sustentees' Retreat Postponed

Due to the loss of the lodge at Pine Springs Ranch we regret to announce that we will not be conducting the Annual Sustentees' Retreat usually held in October.

The Pine Springs Ranch taskforce is busy at work and it is hoped that we will resume our retreat in new facilities in another year.

GOOD RESULTS ARE REPORTED from the Revelation Seminars conducted in El Cajon by Pastor L. Charles Schultz (above). The series was held in the Knox Auditorium. Of the 142 who attended the first meeting, 91 graduated from the course twelve weeks later. Due to the strong interest this program has created, a Daniel Seminar is being conducted as a follow-up in the El Cajon Church.

"Why Spend $1,000 to Send My Child to an Adventist Elementary School?"

That's the question I had to answer this summer. There's a beautiful public school just down the street. And tuition is free. On the basis of location and cost, my choice would be easy. But there are some things about our local Adventist school that my wife and I also considered.

Some Very Special Teachers

First, the teachers. Sure, they're all fully certified professionals. But, more important, each is dedicated to sharing Christ in what and how they teach. And not just during Bible class and worship, but in all classes, including handwriting and physical education. From my visits to Kami's classroom, I know that her teacher also reveals Jesus by the way he talks and lives.

Head, Hand, and Heart Education

Next came quality of education. During parent-teacher conferences, we saw some achievement test scores showing that SDA education consistently outranks the others. And we're impressed by the completeness of today's Adventist education. From first grade right through college, our schools are preparing young people for tomorrow's world. Just look at an SDA academy bulletin sometime: computer programming, welding, microwave cooking, ceramics, nursing science, band, choir, word processing . . . the list goes on and on. And Kami's looking forward to taking everything!

On-the-Job Training

We found more good news. Next school year, Kami's going to have the opportunity to work in our new school-owned bakery. Which whittles down that $1000 figure. But I'm just as excited about the valuable experience she'll be gaining. She's already planning to be a "millworker" at Harris Pine when she goes to academy just like her cousin Wesley. "Don't decide too soon," I tell her. She may still opt for becoming a "farm gal" or a nurse's aide, earning tuition and valuable work experience at the same time. Of course, with the way our schools are coming up with new creative and profitable work-study options, who knows what Kami might get into by then?

Andrews Announces New Architecture Program

The developing emphasis on interior architecture at Andrews University will gain new impetus with the addition of Neville Salvador as visiting professor for the 1984-85 school year.

Neville Salvador

An active member of the Hollywood, California, Church, Mr. Salvador has for five years been a designer with Walder Associates Inc., of Los Angeles.

In addition to teaching interior architecture studies, Mr. Salvador will be team teaching a new course, Introduction to Architecture and Interior Architecture. Dominique Walmsley of Andrews will also participate in teaching this course.

Neville Clouten, chairman of the department of architecture, reports that Andrews has become one of the first schools in the United States to incorporate an interior design degree program with programs in architecture. While common in Europe, this new program attests to Andrews' desire to establish a progressive architecture program.

WHEN HUBERT CRANK GRADUATED from Adventist Indian School last May, he was not only president of his class but also a second-generation Seventh-day Adventist. Attending school at Holbrook, Arizona, all 12 of his school years, Hubert (with others like him) is one of the rewards of Christian teachers who are returning to the classrooms this month. Why not urge all the students in your church family to attend a Christian school this year—and then nudge a few of them who need assistance with the encouragement of your own financial commitment or one-time gift. After all, educating the family is the privilege and responsibility of all—parents, grandparents, extended family, even singles!

More Than Dollars

I've shared with you some of the main reasons why we chose an Adventist school for Kami. Still, one thousand is a pretty big number.

On the other hand, there are some other numbers to consider. For example, the large number of young people who are baptized and continue to be active in the church if they've had the advantage of a Seventh-day Adventist education.

In the end, that was what made our decision for us. We couldn't put a price on our daughter's Christian experience. So we consider the cost our most valuable investment.

That's also why Kami's grandma and grandpa continue to support Adventist education financially through their local church's school subsidy program. They know that Christian education is a responsibility for the entire church family. I know my wife and I will still be supporting Adventist education long after Kami and her two-year-old sister Karli have graduated.

Learning to Share Christianity

One major difference between our SDA school and the public school is that our school doesn't shut down on weekends! Outreach activity is a way of life. And Kami loves every minute. Branch Sabbath School. The witnessing tumbling team. Temperance Club. Adopt-a-Grandparent. Right now she's out with the Service Action Team, washing windows and scrubbing floors at a shut-in's home. I'm not sure where she learned to do windows like that.

One Final Number

With all the numbers we've talked about, there's one more we considered: 4,517. That's baptisms of Adventist students in a single school year. And that number means a lot more to a dad when his own daughter comes to him and says, "Pastor Clark's going to have baptismal classes after school on Tuesdays. Can I go?"

We couldn't think of another school that offered a class better than that!

Board Member Attends Classes During PUC Summer Session

"A most marvelous experience" is how PUC board member Marion Williams describes being a student at the college where she is also on the board. In addition to being a board member since February, 1981, Williams has served on the executive board, personnel committee, audit committee, and on the presidential search committee. Already holding a B.S. degree in history/political science from La Sierra (1955), and a master's in social work from U.S.C. (1957), Mrs. Williams has returned to the classroom to earn a B.S. in nursing. During this year's summer session, Mrs. Williams took chemistry and anatomy classes. "I find returning to school rejuvenating, but am learning great lessons of humility in chemistry," she says. While a student, Marion Williams doesn't forget her role as a board member. She listens to the students around her, and looks for places where certain areas may be improved.

Marion Williams, PUC board member and summer school student, receives assistance in chemistry lab from the instructor, Dr. Don Halenz.

"Nothing will restore confidence in Christian education like being a student in one of our Adventist colleges," says Mrs. Williams. "At PUC I'm shown how wonderful our Creator is. At public colleges, this is never brought out."

PUC News Notes

The first west coast Korean Camp Meeting was held on campus July 16-21. Over 500 Koreans attended from Washington, Oregon, and California. Korean was used at all meetings, with keynote speakers H. M. S. Richards, Jr., Warren Benfield, and D. Malcolm Maxwell using translators. A choir made up of members from Korean churches across the West Coast sang for the campmeeting church service July 21.

In the June 11, 1984, issue of the Recorder, names of students graduating on June 7 with academic distinction and honors were printed. Unfortunately, the name of Terry Buchmiller was omitted. Miss Buchmiller, a pre-med student, graduated with a B.S. degree in music with an overall grade point average of 4.0. PUC regrets this oversight.

ARIZONA

Carl Johnston Ordained at Camp Meeting

Carl S. Johnston was ordained to the gospel ministry June 16 at the Prescott, Arizona camp meeting.

Carl and Ella Johnston

Elder Johnston's ministry began in May, 1980, in pastoral and evangelistic work. In September, 1982, he was appointed to full-time evangelism.

The ordination service keynote was set by Elder Carl Coffman, of Andrews University, one of Carl's seminary teachers. His sermonette was entitled, "When the Sheep Have a Real Shepherd." Elder E. Frank Sherrill, president of the Arizona Conference, presented the candidate to the large gathering of family and friends and later welcomed him to the ministry.

Elder Johnston received the Master of Religion degree at the SDA Theological Seminary in 1980. In August, 1981, he married Ella Weis, a graduate of Southwestern Adventist College with a degree in Business Administration. Carl and Ella have worked as a team in public evangelism in Arizona. Their ministry has been blessed and fruitful.

Arizona officers thank the Lord for the dedication of Elder and Mrs. Carl Johnston.

ED JACKSON (RIGHT), Parker Unified School District Bus Barn Supervisor, receives a certificate of recognition for his crew's outstanding work during a 1983 flood emergency. Ed and his crew members provided food service to flood workers up and down the Colorado River and at a Red Cross shelter established in the local high school. The Seventh-day Adventist Church was also recognized for clothing storage, hauling and distribution activities in conjunction with the Red Cross. Ed is a member of the Parker Church, where he serves as communications secretary.

Pioneer Sabbath Celebrated at TAA

Thunderbird Adventist Academy celebrated Pioneer Sabbath shortly before school closed in a large tent erected in the middle of the campus.

Most church members chose to dress in pioneer clothing. Early Advent hymns were sung with a pump organ accompanist. Ellen G. White miracle stories were acted out.

The event was made even more special when James White (Elder John Cress) and Ellen White (Janya Lee) and others in the White party arrived at the tent by horse and buggy.

True to history, James White began singing and slapping his Bible as he walked down the center aisle, and the congregation heartily joined in the singing.

"Elder White" preached a timely sermon on the soon coming of Christ in this very high day for worshipers at Thunderbird Academy.

Neal Wilson, General Conference president, and other Church leaders participated in recording these messages.

The 1984 children's messages are by Paul Sundquist, presently involved in youth and evangelistic work in Poland.

Adult messages are available on a set of two cassettes costing $5, while the children's stories are on a single cassette for $3. To order, write: Week of Prayer Tapes, Ministry Services, Box 217, Burtonsville, MD 20866. Payment must accompany your order. (Note: Extra postage is required for overseas air mail delivery. Union News in Brief

This quarter's mission—Early this year the most populous union in the Adventist Church, the Northern Union of the Southern Asia Division, was divided into the Northern Union and The Northeast India Union. The population of the Northern Union is still some 378 million. The union's three sections and attached fields have almost 100 churches and a membership of nearly 15,000. The new union serves a population of approximately 27 million, with more than 80 churches serving a membership of 10,000.

The Adventist Composers, Arrangers and Poets organization held its first Sabbath service recently in the Canyonville, Oregon, church. Barely two months old, ACAP is dedicated to glorifying God in Gospel music and poetry as well as encouraging and assisting composers and arrangers of sacred music. For more information contact George Davis, Rt. #1, Box 8A, Days Creek, OR 97429.

When Villaney Vazquez, pastor of the Randaes district of Chiapas, Mexico, had the second-highest number of baptisms in the Mexican Union in 1983, he set a goal of 300 new converts for 1984. When he had baptized 364 people by the end of March, he did not slow down simply because his goal was achieved nine months ahead of schedule. Following his last crusade in Randaes, he noted a surprising number of businesses were closing on Saturdays.

The Loma Linda University School of Dentistry has developed a new technique which will enable jaw implants to be constructed by computer. For the past 30 years, patients were forced to undergo two surgeries when implants were required. This new technique will eliminate one surgery, with the added advantage of making the remaining one less traumatic. Information from a series of X-rays is fed into the computer, which then instructs a milling device to construct a plastic model of the patient's jaw. The implant is constructed using that model as a guide. In experimental stages four years, this technique was developed by Harold Truitt, D.D.S.,

Philip Boyne, D.M.D., Robert James, D.D.S., and Philip Lindley, D.D.S., all from the Loma Linda University School of Dentistry.

Volume 3 of the Ellen White biography series, *The Lonely Years, is now available. The Lonely Years covers the period beginning with the death of James White, and includes her travels in Europe and the 1888 Minneapolis Conference. Arthur White, author of the series and grandson of Ellen White, recently delivered the completed manuscript for volume 1, leaving only volume 2 to be written. Volumes 3-6 are currently on the market.

Pathfinder clubs across the North American Division will benefit from the newest journal to be published by the Review and Herald Publishing Association, Pathfinder. This four-color, 24-page magazine will be published every other month, offering adventure stories, nature stories, camping tips, craft ideas and local news from various Pathfinder clubs. Kris Coffin, a recent graduate of Pacific Union College, is managing editor of Pathfinder.

The Andrews University Teaching Materials Center (TMC) has acquired several copies of the New Media Bible presentations of the books of Genesis and Luke. Available in film and video-cassette versions, the programs are word-for-word re-enactments of the books, and are 30 to 40 minutes long. The TMC is renting these films to local churches, recommending them for use at prayer meetings, and vesper programs. Churches using the films are asked to collect a free-will offering or make a minimum donation. For more information contact Richard Powell, Teaching Materials Center, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104 or call (616) 471-3272.

Marc Braeult has joined the pastoral staff of the Diamond Head, Hawaii, Church for the summer. Marc is a senior theology major from Pacific Union College, and his externship at Diamond Head is part of his course of study. Marc is a resident of Hawaii, currently making his home in the Palolo area.

Southern Embarks on Education Master Plan; Surveys Membership on School System

Church members in Southern California are being asked to invest one hour of their time in the future of the conference school system.

All constituent families on Southern's Recorder mailing list were sent a questionnaire in mid-July, according to Lorenzo Paytee, vice president for administration. Data obtained from this instrument will be carefully analyzed by experts in education and will guide long- and short-range planning for the 27-school, 4,200-student system.

Consultants Retained

The survey was prepared by educational consultants of SPACE (Strategic Planning and Analysis Center), who have been retained by the conference to prepare a master plan for the school system. Among those working with Dr. Dean Hubbard on the project are:

—Dr. Paul Hugstad, professor of marketing at California State University, Fullerton

—Dr. LeVerne Bissell, director of institutional research at Union College

—Dr. Pascal Forgione, Jr., bureau chief of the Bureau of Research, Planning and Evaluation of the Connecticut State Department of Education

—Dr. Bruce Allen, president of the Strategic Planning and Analysis Center

—Dr. Hans Jenny, vice president for finance at the College of Wooster in Ohio.

Dr. Hubbard, who heads the group, is the newly-appointed president of Northwest Missouri State University. He was formerly president of Union College.

According to Elder Paytee, research has led to the discovery of 12 points which make for effective schools, whether public or parochial. The survey was prepared to assess how Southern's members perceived the school system in the 12 key areas.

Reshaping the System

It will also indicate what members feel the schools should be doing to meet educational needs, and how well they feel the schools are accomplishing their task. Demographic and financial sections will help determine how costs and geographical-social factors influence enrollment.

"When the data is in, it will be used to reshape the school system to meet the needs of the members," says Elder Paytee. "For example, if the survey shows that people aren't sending their children to Adventist schools because they live too far from the school, recommendations may be made for a transportation system. If they are concerned about academic standards, we will work on curriculum design."

Confidentiality Assured

All individual responses to the questionnaire are being kept confidential, says Elder Paytee. Completed forms are not even sent to the conference office. Instead, they go directly from the respondent to Union College, which is handling data processing.

The validity of the survey depends on a sufficient number of responses. "I feel very moved at the volume of response we are getting," Elder Paytee says. "The people pay for the school system. It belongs to them. They ought to have input into it."

Persons who are members of churches in the Southern California Conference and for whatever reason did not receive a survey (one per family) may get one by calling the conference office at (213) 245-1876.

Doctors Joan Shoemaker (left), Dean Hubbard and Pascal Forgione, Jr., educators involved in the Conference education master plan, spoke for a joint meeting of all conference pastors, teachers and principals recently, familiarizing conference personnel with the education survey being sent to Southern's constituency. The survey will provide important data on how church members feel the schools should be operated.

GAMC—Chevy Chase Chapel Opened

"Dreams do become realities," said Chaplain Ed Bryan, who joined Glendale Adventist Medical Center personnel in celebrating the dedication of the new chapel at the Chevy Chase campus on June 27.

Plans for the new chapel began when the Chevy Chase facility was first acquired by the Medical Center in 1980. The GAMC Chaplain's office with administration felt a chapel was basic for setting the whole spiritual tone of the 152-bed facility.

"Now that our dream has become a reality, patients, families and GAMC personnel are enjoying a spiritual uplifting," said Bryan. "The new chapel is a beautiful place of worship, a place to help guide those to Him who is the source of all healing."

The chapel is open 24 hours a day for prayer and meditation. Pastors from the Chaplain's staff and visiting ministers utilize the peaceful and spiritual setting to meet with patients and their families, as well as Chevy Chase personnel. A worship service is conducted on Sundays at 11 a.m. for patients and personnel.

Designed with big windows and stained glass behind the pulpit, the chapel gives the appearance of a bright garden setting. Construction of the 30-seat chapel was funded by friends of the Medical Center.
