April 14 Offering To Support Andrews Graduate Studies

by Ronald Knott, Assistant Director, Public Relations, Andrews University

Gladys Pidoux is enrolled in a master's program at Andrews University, but at home she lives in Angwin and attends the St. Helena Spanish church.

Gladys Pidoux

Graduated from Pacific Union College a year ago with a French major, Gladys is working toward an M.A.T. degree in English at Andrews and expects to finish next December.

When she completes her program, Gladys will be certified for French-English and Spanish-English bilingual education. She says she wants to teach language on the secondary level, and she hopes to find employment in Adventist education.

"La Voz" Introduces "Buena Salud"

A new correspondence course has been released by La Voz de la Esperanza, the counterpart of the VOP program for the Spanish-speaking population.

Entitled Buena Salud (Good Health), the course consists of 10 lesson-booklets presented in a contemporary style and is designed for both Adventists and non-church members.

La Voz first began offering correspondence courses more than 40 years ago. For many years only two Bible courses were offered: Tesoros de Vida (Treasures of Life) for adults and Juvenil for young people. In 1981 a course on family relationship entitled Hogar Feliz (Happy Home) was added.

"For many years we have received letters from listeners and students whose questions required more than a simple letter of response," says Rubén Darío Sánchez, director of the La Voz Bible School. "This demonstrated need for material regarding health was actively involved in religious activities, Gladys is vice president of the Spanish arm of the "Andrews Christian Youth Action" (A.C.Y.A.) and is a participant in one of the Bible study groups on campus.

Gladys is only one of hundreds of students at Andrews who have found what they are looking for—a solid Christian perspective in graduate education.

However, over the past few years it has become increasingly difficult for Adventist students to finance a graduate degree. Higher costs on all levels have forced most graduate students to rely heavily on government-guaranteed loans for a Christian education, or else opt for public education at a state university. Andrews financial aid officers say that students often have to borrow as one reason this new course was prepared," Dr. Sánchez adds.

Dr. Milton Peverini, director-speaker of La Voz, says, "Our Church has some positive help for preventive medicine and health care. We want to give this Christian guidance to the Spanish-speaking families."

He continues, "We trust that, with the Lord's blessing, the number of students in our Bible School will grow considerably. This new course will facilitate the enrollment of more students in doctrinal courses; and, as a result, there will be more baptisms."

Enrollment cards for the new course are available by writing: La Voz de la Esperanza, Box 55, Los Angeles, CA 90053.

Adventist Schools Emphasize Caring

by E. J. Anderson, Director
Office of Education

While traversing beautiful California on its functional freeways, I noticed a prominent sign. In bold letters I read the message: "Stay at the Quality Inn—stay with the people who care!"

Silently, I asked myself, is this for real?

In the '60s we were confronted with the need for "peace." In the '70s we heard of the need for "love," and now in the decade of the '80s it's "caring"; "the caring motel," "the caring restaurant," "the caring church" and "the caring school."

We are encouraged to "reach out and touch someone"; send flowers—"let them know you care."

The caring church judges its activities by its success in leading people to spiritual growth and eternal life. Christ spent His life in ministry, caring for people. His conviction is that people are more important than programs or institutions. The caring church will impress people by responding to their needs.

Is the school of today a caring school? What about a Seventh-day Adventist school? Does it reflect a caring attitude?

Education, in general, is anxious to show that it cares for the youth of this generation. There is a cry for excellence in education, a desire to build a model that will assist in this goal.

In the past year educators have been reviewing major reform reports which deal with proposals for improving America's schools. Among them are: Action for Excellence, High School, A Nation At Risk—National Commission on Excellence in Education, A Place Called School and others.

The problems that plague the schools, particularly secondary, seem to be clear to everyone. Test scores have dropped. Discipline problems appear to be more severe. There is a lack of respect for teachers. Truancy has increased. Fewer students enroll in advanced math, foreign language and science classes.

Ernest L Boyer, in his book High School, wrote, "There is a growing national consensus that our future depends on public education. . . . If we do not seize this special moment, we will fail the

CBS Requests Adventists To Do Program for April 22 Release

By special invitation of CBS television, a "Celebration of Hope" will be televised at the Camarillo, California, church for airing on Sunday, April 22.

Participants are being drawn from many areas of California for the service, which will dwell not only on the hope which follows the resurrection of Jesus but also that from His promise of a second coming.

Made possible by the friendship of Victor Cooper, associate director of communications at the General Conference, with a CBS producer, the invitation came to the Pacific Union because of the CBS' desire to focus on a multi-ethnic congregation—and especially to include Vietnamese. Local arrangements are being coordinated by Shirley Burton, Union director of communication.

Featured in the 18-minute meditation will be Roger Bothwell, pastor of the Pacific Union College Church, whose subject is "And Death Shall Be No More."

Host pastor is Phil Knoche. Commander Herman Kibble from nearby Port Hueneme and Camarillo's associate pastor, Randy Speyer, will also participate.

Musicians to be included are the Camarillo Male Chorus, directed by Jim Brizendine; Grace and Bruce Chan, six- and seven-year-old Fresno violinists; and the Glendale Vietnamese Choir, directed by Le Khai. Soloists are Scott Reed of Camarillo; Ruth Robertson, Newbury Park; and Robert Nations, Thousand Oaks.

Le Cong Giao, Glendale pastor and former president of the Vietnam Mission, will pay tribute to

WMMC Employees Help Stricken Colleague

In a remarkable two days of sharing and love, White Memorial Medical Center employees, physicians and clinic staff banded together to raise $6,700 to benefit a fellow employee.

In September, Theresa Kummer, R.N., director of surgery and recovery, was diagnosed as suffering from metastatic cancer. Just before Thanksgiving, several employees learned that Mrs. Kummer's condition was deteriorating rapidly and that she had expressed a fervent desire to see her 81-year-old mother, who lives in Idaho and is wheelchair bound, one more time.

After consulting with Mrs. Kummer's family and physician, the employees established the Theresa Kummer Fund to raise the money to fly the seriously ill woman to Boise, Idaho, by air ambulance. In the two days available before the physician said the flight must be made, WMMC's employee family raised the funds; and on Friday morning, November 18, a group of employees gathered at Burbank Airport to see Mrs. Kummer leave.

On Monday, December 12, Theresa Kummer died in Boise in her sister's arms. At Mrs. Kummer's special request, a memorial service was held at the White Memorial Church for the employee family, though Theresa herself was a Catholic.

"This was a demonstration of love and caring in action that benefited all involved," said Graciela Schaeffler, vice president for patient care. "For Theresa and her family, it was a very special and meaningful time to spend together; and for those who made the trip possible, it gave a special warm feeling deep inside that continues to linger."

Theresa Kummer is transferred from an ambulance to a waiting plane as WMMC employees gather to say goodbye.

Adventist Schools Emphasize Caring

This is a summary of the situation as various reports perceive the public sector and its educational system. What is the condition that exists in our church schools today?

Most schools are like the communities that surround them. The church's schools fairly well reflect the constituents of the school. Do we operate schools and churches that care?—care for the student—care for the teacher—care for the parents—care for the home—and care for the Church?

Have we convinced one another that we care and show by our actions that we "love one another" as our Lord has commanded? "The secret of our success in the work of God will be found in the harmonious working of our people." Christian Service, page 75.

The caring school will present a Christ-centered curriculum with Christ-centered teachers as the core. Such a curriculum will contain a new emphasis on the teaching of the communication skills.

Furthermore, this curriculum will include a test for competence levels in mathematics. Graduation requirements in U.S. history, the Constitution, and American ideals will have to be redefined.

Additional attention will need to be given to improving kindergarten-through-12th-grade teacher preparation as well as methods for attracting top students to careers in Christian education. A caring school will strive to improve the preparation of all students for employment in a great number of fields, i.e. business, computer science, and occupations within the Church.

Vietnam veterans who gave the Vietnamese hope, in a parallel with the hope which Jesus gave to the world. Members of the Vietnamese Choir will present maile and orchid leis to the veterans and Gold Star parents in attendance. The leis will be supplied by the Conejo Valley VFW post commander, who is himself a Vietnam veteran.

Instrumentalists will include a brass group organized by Michael Potts, Camarillo; Liz Kuntzman-Remboldt, Sonora, organ; Duquessa McGuffin, Glendale, harp; and Linda Vannix-Lockwood, Camarillo, flute.

Although the program is being produced by CBS network, local airing at 11 a.m. anywhere in the Pacific Union is the determination of Yourtown's affiliate. If you are interested in seeing it televised in your area, you may wish to write a letter to your local station. One concept which might capture the attention of the local program director is the tribute to Vietnam veterans.

Remember, your local station has three options: to rebroadcast the "Celebration of Hope" at the same time as received from New York; to record the program for later broadcast; or to fill the time with a paid-for broadcast.

Pray for this special telecast—the first time Seventh-day Adventists have been invited by a network to plan an hour of specified religious programming, without charge to the Church.

Christian Education Is Reason for Thankfulness

As a church we can offer a prayer of thanks for the 1,238 elementary schools and academies in North America. These schools offer spiritual safety and a balanced education to the children and youth of the Church. They are not only to be "cities of refuge"—shielding from the unwholesome, unhealthful elements so prevalent in our world today—but also they teach Biblical truth and afford to each student the privilege and opportunity of knowing Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour.

Just as public education is one of the fundamental supports of a democratic society, so Christian education is a foundation for the Christian society. Our world today needs skilled craftsmen and competent professionals but, more importantly, it needs spiritually committed individuals—disciples of Christ.

Providing the kind of education that fits young Christians to take their place in society requires a tremendous investment on the part of parents and churches. It has and always will require sacrifice. There is no such thing as "cheap grace" or "uncommitted discipleship."

As with Christ, it demands our all—all that we have and all that we are. In an increasingly materialistic society, we must determine to preserve the spiritual heritage granted to us.

To ignore or neglect the educational duty placed upon us will affect not only our temporal status but our eternal welfare as well.

"The beauty and virtue of the word of God have a transforming influence upon mind and character; the sparks of heavenly love will fall upon the hearts of the children as an inspiration. We may bring hundreds and thousands of children to Christ if we will work for them." CPT, p. 172.

This year on Education Day, let us afford our children the benefits and advantages of a truly Christian education.

Constituency Session Held; Officers Re-elected

In a constituency session notable for its unity and harmoniousness, delegates to the 55th Business Session of the Southern California Conference re-elected the four Conference administrators by a near-unanimous vote. The session was held February 25 and 26 at the White Memorial church in Los Angeles.

Continuing as president for the next three years will be Ralph S. Watts, Jr. Returning to their posts with new titles voted in a constitution and bylaws revision are Lorenzo W. Paytee, vice president for administration; Augustine C. Cortez, vice president for special services; and Relious L. Walden, vice president for finance.

Departmental staff re-elected were: W. Paul Turpel, director, Adventist Book Center; Natanael Caballero, auditor; William deShay, Black affairs director; Joyce Morse and Glen McKnight, associate educational superintendents; Tom Neslund, health and temperance director; John Tulio, director of legal affairs; Max Torkelsen, ministerial director; Ora McLean, personal ministries/Sabbath school director; Marilyn Thomsen, public relations and media director; Mel Lyon, publishing director; Arturo Utz, associate publishing director; Joseph Winston, risk management director; Augustine Cortez, Spanish ministries director; Palmer Wick, stewardship and development director; Ivan Warden, urban ministries director; and youth ministries director, George "Bucky" Weeks, and associates, Homer Hart and Alfonso Valenzuela.

John Knipschild, who has been acting director of education since the summer of 1983, was elected to that post.

Delegates also elected an executive committee, which will oversee the operation of the Conference during the next triennium. Under a constitution and bylaws change, this committee now has 25 members, with lay persons having an absolute majority.

Ballot counting was handled swiftly and efficiently by persons such as Sunny Oh.

Students Discover Everyone Is Their Neighbor

The La Sierra Elementary School sixth-graders had an exciting community cleanup project in connection with the discussion in their Bible class on "Who Is My Neighbor?" The consensus of the class was "my neighbor is anyone who needs help."

The teacher, Arnie Muderspach, pre-visited numerous homes in the area that needed cleanup of their grounds, and five families were selected. Only one of the five families served were Adventist members, but all unanimously made expressions such as: "You mean it is free?" "That's a great way to show good citizenship and dignity of work."

The impact of the community cleanup project may never be known even though one trailer full of trash was hauled away. The students know, however, that they have left behind good will, contributed to the well-being of the community, and displayed to all their belief that everyone is their neighbor.

La Sierra Elementary School sixth-graders work to clean up around a house in their community as they discover that everyone is their neighbor. Working here are, from the left, Yvette Lugo, Sana Johnson, Mrs. Johnson (who helped supervise) and Jennifer Nichols.

Easter Worship Experience Slated

An unusual and innovative Easter worship experience is planned for the Riverside Community Church.

The four-day observation will utilize "living tableaux" of the various events leading to the crucifixion and resurrection of the Lord. The presentations begin Thursday evening, April 19, and conclude Sunday morning, April 22.

On Sabbath morning the Cross and a Tomb will be depicted in the church foyer. Pastor Mitch Henson's sermon will be "The Saddest Sabbath in History."

For further information, including specific times, the number to call is (714) 686-1886. The church is located at 4850 Jurupa Avenue in Riverside.

Old-fashioned Camp Meeting Slated

The Old-fashioned Camp Meeting will be held May 25 to 28 at the Farmers Fairgrounds in Hemet, starting Friday evening at 7:30 and ending with the devotional on Monday morning.

This camp meeting has been co-sponsored by the Palomar Nature Club and the Conference each year for the past eight years.

Scheduled to speak on Sabbath are H. M. S. Richards, Jr., from the Voice of Prophecy and Dan Matthews from Faith For Today.

On Saturday evening there will be a premier showing of the newest Faith For Today film entitled "Lesson in Loving." This is a 90-minute film which will be shown shortly on major television networks.

As in the past, three special classes will be held on Sunday in addition to the preaching hours.

It is not too early to send in reservations for RV parking. The price is $7 a night. The fairground management requests that no vehicles come in before 4 p.m. on May 24. Campers are requested to abide by this ruling.

Below is a blank that should be filled out and returned with $7 per night. Checks should be made payable to Old-fashioned Camp Meeting.

Mariposa Has Small but Diversified School

A hearty "Amen!" resounded throughout the Mariposa church when members at a winter meeting voted overwhelmingly to continue the church school for another year.

Typical, one says. Maybe, but note that according to Associate Superintendent of Education George Bronson, "Mariposa is the smallest school in the entire Conference."

Undeterred, Mariposans rose to speak positively for the school and what is being done for its three students.

Teacher Dave Stevens says it's a real challenge to work out ideas with the small group—ranging from Kelley, a Down's Syndrome child doing first-grade work, to day cooking school. The idea caught on. Many Fridays are now filled with learning, cooking, and fellowship between the two generations.

Teacher Stevens says cooperation of church members in actively taking part with the school has been exceptional.

Commercial-art graduate Carol Howe gives the children 90-minute art lessons every week. She brings her three children with her. For an hour and a half, enrollment doubles. Hazel Brown and her Dorcas ladies have jumped in to show the students how to sew, quilt-tie and sort clothing for community service distribution. Gardeners Russ and Iva Edwardsen share their joy in growing things.

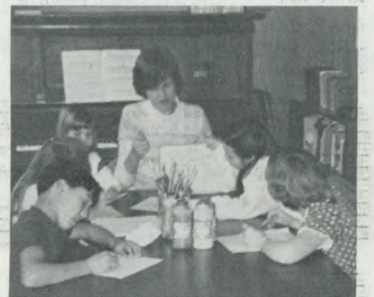

At Mariposa School—with just three students, it's Central's smallest—Teacher Dave Stevens' work is augmented by help from people in the church. Gerri and Lyle Gaylord (left and right) work with Chris and Reina Stark in a library-science project combining the church and school libraries.

Chris, the fourth-grader, and Reina, an accelerated seventh-grader.

"But," says Dave, "we are finding a lot of great things to do both in and out of the classroom. One thing that is a real bonus is being able to jump into the teacher's car and take off anywhere in the county."

Parents have given permission for the children to be taken on mini field trips at a moment's notice. Parental cooperation has aided in the development of a program of freedom in learning.

Church seniors and the school both benefit by the nutrition labs held in different homes on Fridays. Lyle and Gerri Gaylord, who also work with the students in library science, invited the students to their home for a Fri-

Artist Carol Howe illustrates a lesson for Mariposa's three students, with two of her own children joining in the activity.

Dire predictions to the contrary, both church and school are in good financial health. Every category of funding is up and doing well. The school's bills are paid in advance, and a nice nest egg is on hand to insure payment.

Observes Pastor Stanley Hiten, "What looked rather dismal last summer has become a real asset for the Mariposa Seventh-day Adventist Church. It's little wonder that church members resounded with a hearty 'Amen!' when asked if they wanted to keep the school going next year."

Students Win Voice of Democracy Contest

Paradise Adventist School sophomores won the three highest awards in the local Voice of Democracy speech contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

At the February 22 awards banquet the first-place winner, Kenny Schlotthauer, presented the speech before VFW officials, contest judges, and fellow contestants and their parents. Enthusiastic applause followed Kenny's speech on this year's topic, "My Role in Upholding the Constitution." His award included $100, a gold medal, and a certificate of merit.

Sophomores Susie Hardt and Brent Lindgren won second- and third-place awards of cash, silver and bronze medals, and certificates of merit.

Of the eight speeches entered in the contest, six were by PAS students. Nenette White, Dean Curry and Don Hardt won fifth-, seventh-, and eighth-place awards of $5 each and flag sets. The two entrants from Paradise High School were senior speech students who won fourth- and sixth-place awards.

At the conclusion of the ceremony contestants introduced their parents to the audience. As the students posed for a formal photograph, judges at the speakers' table commented on the "clean, wholesome, all-American" qualities of PAS students.

Kenny's speech won fourth place at the district level. The Gridley High School student who won first place will go to the state contest. That winner will go to the nation's capital, where this year's national Voice of Democracy winner will receive a $14,000 scholarship to the college of his choice.

KAS To Relocate at Kahili Mountain Park

Kauai Adventist School faces many problems. The most pressing seem to be: (a) inadequate classroom space, (b) high level of highway noise, (c) restricted playground and work/study area, and (d) limited room for expansion.

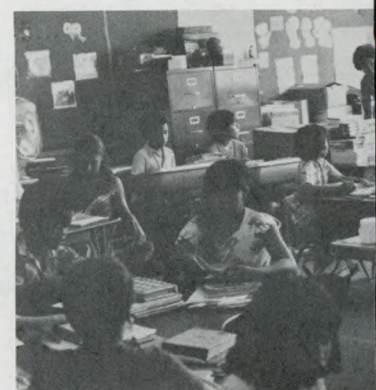

Centrally located. From Lihue, Kahili is a 20-minute drive west toward Lawai on Highway 50. Adequate space for expansion. More than enough space for classrooms, parking lot, auditorium, faculty and student housing, and other long-term facilities. Suitable for work/study program. The property offers many possibilities for programs where students can be involved in various work activities for experience and tuition considerations.

HAWAIIAN MISSION ELEMENTARY has urgent needs in the physical plant: (1) additional parking, (2) multipurpose space.

Every Wednesday morning Ronald Blair's 4th, 5th, and 6th grade classes visit the senior day-care center. The students are paired up with a senior, and the students help with the different activities such as crafts, games, exercising and field trips.

Sara Kendall, a fifth-grader at Kailua Mission School, wrote a letter to the editor of The Honolulu Advertiser, and the October 6, 1983, issue featured it:

Wonderful Idea

On a recent field trip to the Castle Medical Center, I noticed prisoners working alongside the road.

I think this is wonderful. It's good for them to have fresh air and exercise. I think we should do this more often.

It's a good way to keep our island clean and save money. My dad is a minister and often goes to the prison and gives Bible studies. He likes the idea, too.

My hope is this wonderful project will continue.

With spacious two-year-old church and school facilities, Molokai Mission School is interested in developing further its work-study-service program for the children and youth of Molokai.

Religion Is an Action Word at TJA

According to Webster, religion is "the service and worship of God . . ." It is a "commitment or devotion" to one's faith. For Tucson Junior Academy students, this commitment includes a sharing of that faith with those around them.

The ninth- and tenth-grade students are sharing their belief in younger students with their studies.

As a missionary outreach, the secondary Bible class is looking for a family to help. The students and their teacher feel this is a way to live their religious beliefs.

For several years the students in the fifth and sixth grades have visited a local nursing home at Christmas. They make Christmas cards to share with the residents and also present a program. The nursing home residents so look forward to the visit that the program director now calls early in the year to make sure the students will be able to come. These students also pass out flyers for the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

and love for God as they present the eleven o'clock worship service in local Adventist churches. They prepare sermonettes, plan special music, and think about meaningful prayers. Different groups go to the various churches on different Sabbaths. One of the groups is preparing its service in Spanish for the Spanish-speaking churches. When they have visited the Tucson churches, the groups will be available to present their worship service at other area churches.

Several ninth- and tenth-grade students are working in the lower-grade classrooms. They assist the teachers by checking class papers and working on craft and bulletin board projects. They also help the

Students in grades one through four learn to share their love for Jesus by doing thoughtful deeds. They make cards and send them to family members, classmates, or others who might be ill or sad.

Seventh- and eighth-graders are learning how to give Bible studies, and plans are under way for them to present these studies to students in the lower grades.

Children Learn Joy of Giving

Children of the Las Vegas Church Primary Division have learned the true joy of giving.

For several weeks they brought wrapped gifts, food and clothing for their "special family of five." When December 17 came, they delivered their presents to the family and sang carols. Later they returned to the church for their Christmas party.

The division leader, Colleen Cozzo, her assistants, Yvonne Weir and Charlotte Davis, and the children thank Dr. and Mrs. Perry, Eleanor Sparks and Judy Khoe for helping them make this a not-to-be-forgotten Christmas.

U.S. Pays Homage to Vatican

Hope Dispels Despair

by John V. Stevens, Sr., Director
Public Affairs and Religious Liberty

The U.S. Senate has confirmed the nomination of William Wilson to be ambassador to the Vatican, with only Alan Cranston (CA-D) from the Pacific Union's five-state area opposing this far-reaching decision which carried by 81-13.

Americans United has announced that it will file suit in federal court on constitutional grounds, and the Seventh-day Adventist Church indicated previously that it would join in the litigation.

Loyal participation of pastors and members who voiced opposition has been noted in Heaven, as we have endeavored to ensure the freedom and equality of all religions under the law. The United States has now formally given preferential recognition to Roman Catholicism in the face of a nearly two-centuries-old prohibition.

Some members have wondered if such efforts do not indeed delay the Lord's return, inasmuch as prophecy has indicated these events will transpire prior to that climactic event. However, the pen of inspiration has pointed out the remnant's responsibility to be vocal on such issues.

When legislatures are seeking to pass laws establishing religion, we are to make known the reasons for our opposition. If we do not respond, "God will hold His people who have had great light responsible for their lack of diligence and faithfulness. (Review and Herald Extra, 12-24-1889)

Evangelists were urged years ago to go to places where Sunday laws and the teaching of the Bible in public schools were being agitated. Such neglect was hindering the advancement of the gospel, God revealed. (9 Testimonies, 51)

Such confrontations, in Christian love and truth, will become catalysts to reveal God's true character, His will, and the principles of His kingdom. Thus, people will be brought face to face with the conflict of the ages, lives will be transformed, and Christ's return hastened.

Whether our efforts are successful or not in stemming the tide of religious oppression is not of primary importance.

Being widely acclaimed is the belief that if our nation is to stop its nightmarish skid to oblivion, religious symbolism must be legalized in order to secure God's favor. On the contrary, such actions will ultimately bring this country to national apostasy, which will be followed quickly by national ruin.

It is time to ready ourselves for eternity, and bring this message of hope to a world in despair.

An architect's model suggests what Phase II of the Science Complex will look like when completed. A $1.4 million capital campaign currently under way will fund completion of the building.

International Campaign Launched To Complete Science Complex

An international campaign to raise $1.4 million for construction of Phase II of the PUC Science Complex was begun on March 1.

When completed, the building will house classrooms, laboratories, teachers' offices and research areas for the College's chemistry and physics departments. Construction is expected to begin this month or early May.

According to Dr. A. Vernon Winn, campaign chairman and vice president for academic affairs, some 9,400 alumni throughout the world are expected to participate in the campaign, in addition to corporations, foundations and local area business firms.

The Committee of 100, a group concerned with capital improvements on the campus, is scheduled to provide some $300,000 of the fund-raising total.

Herbert Ford, coordinator of the campaign, said fund-raising efforts among College alumni will utilize a pyramid-type plan in which some 1,200 volunteer alumni each solicit funds for the new building from five other alumni. Coordinating fund-raising activities among these volunteers will be captain-volunteers and area chairpersons.

According to Mr. Ford, moneys raised through the campaign are expected to provide funding which will allow complete enclosing of the building and housing of the chemistry department. Additional funds will be needed to complete outfitting of the structure for the physics department, he said.

Malcolm Maxwell, president of the College, said the award of a construction manager's contract for work on the new building had been made to Denominational Building Services of Lincoln, Nebraska. It is anticipated that construction will be completed in about 14 months, said Dr. Maxwell.

A large percentage of students at PUC take their major studies in various areas of science, according to Dr. Winn. Each year, a relatively high number of graduates of the College are accepted to professional training in medicine, dentistry, nursing and paramedical fields.

"This large number of students needing undergraduate training in science fields makes the best in training facilities necessary," said Dr. Winn. "We are pleased that this fund-raising campaign, with early indications promising an over-subscription of the goal, is being launched to help meet the need for such facilities."

ADA WILLIAMS and HER STAFF at MONUMENT VALLEY—as well as the Navajos themselves—send special gratitude for all you did for their holidays! During "spare" time, the staff made up 100 boxes for Navajos in the Valley as well as students at the boarding school in Kayenta. Especially nice were the many new toys sent as well as money to buy others and fruit. Many made crocheted and knitted items. Each one was special, as these faces show. Thanks to all who were so generous.
