Monday, April 16, 1984 / Volume 83, Number 21 / Angwin, California / Official Biweekly of the Pacific Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

The 60-member Pathfinder Club—only 25 percent Adventist—met San Gabriel's contingent of volunteers at the Majuro airport and lined the walks as the 16 students and 10 adults made their way from the Air Micronesia plane. So impressed were the pilots that they asked to be photographed with the Pathfinders.

Caring Students

Students Help on Pacific Mission

Sixteen students from the San Gabriel Academy experienced South Pacific mission service during February and March as they helped with the construction of a classroom-administration building for Majuro Mission Academy in the Marshall Islands.

Students, three faculty members and seven professionals, including an electrician, a mason and others in the building arts, undertook the project because they believe that such service is a part of Christian education.

Need an idea?

Adventist Indian School, Box 880, Holbrook, AZ 86025, received the gift of two small, simple computers. Now they need a screen and printer for the Commodore 64.

This is the third year that San Gabriel students have participated in a major mission program, the two previous trips to Mexico.

Barbara Larson, home economics, English and art teacher, and Steve Becker, industrial arts and government instructor, coordinated the project.

School faculty is . . . composed . . . of . . . student missionaries, special volunteers, and retired persons.

Volunteerism at Majuro is not unique. The school faculty is almost entirely composed of Adventist student missionaries, special service volunteers, and retired persons in Sustentee Overseas Service.

Because $24,500 was needed to pay expenses of the trip, the venture was a faith project financed by generous and unexpected contributors. Construction funds came from the 13th Sabbath overflow offering taken by the world Church in September 1983.

Prior to the trip, the students were oriented to the culture of the South Sea islanders. They also attended a seminar on building construction to learn about some of the actual tasks, such as mixing cement and laying brick.

School work continued while on the flight to Majuro, and the African Children Need Clothing

Children's clothing caches have been depleted at the Watsonville Warehouse of ADRA International—the new name for Seventh-day Adventist World Service.

Northern Californians especially are asked to respond to this need, called to world attention by UN Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar. ADRA (Adventist Development and Relief Agency) was one of the private charitable organizations to receive the appeal in behalf of five million children.

In addition to clothing, ADRA officials are calling for money to buy food for the children, who are starving as well as going unclothed. In fact, the Secretary General says these children will be handicapped permanently because of malnutrition.

ADRA, in an experimental project, is asking Northern California and Michigan conferences to respond to this particular appeal. However, all wishing to clean out closets and dressers may know their gifts will be appreciated.

You may even wish to make the need known locally in Yourtown for others who may be moved to help children and infants in Africa. Routing, as usual, should be through your Community Services Center.

Good News!

The Post Office has taken another look at second-class materials and agrees, with us, that the RECORDER should get something better than "junk mail" attention.

Though you may not receive the same postal delivery as when you received this publication weekly, you should now be receiving—or at least BY SUMMER—the RECORDER within two or three days of the publication date.

Your continuing "watch-dogging" with us will be appreciated as the staff does all in its power to get the news to you, and forthcoming events before they occur!

For two weeks Brent Robinson, who took a semester's leave from his studies at East Los Angeles College to join his former schoolmates from San Gabriel Academy, mixed mortar. In fact, he went a week ahead of the group and remains in Majuro today to help finish the building.

Hispanic Lay Congress Attracts 300 Plus

More than 300 lay delegates and pastors attended the Pacific Union Hispanic Lay Congress at Soquel in mid-February.

"Haz de mí un ganador de almas" (make me a soul winner) was the theme.

Fernon Retzer, Sabbath school director from the Southern Union, and Pablo Perla, president of the Costa Rican Mission, were featured Sabbath speakers.

Elder Perla related some of the hardships and life-threatening situations Adventist members are experiencing in Central America, though membership is growing rapidly.

Representation from the Pacific Press, Concerned Communications, and La Voz de la Esperanza showed the latest Spanish materials available for lay training and missionary outreach.

LLA Establishes Learning Advancement Program

"I think it's fun because I learn a lot. The teacher really helps us," commented a student enrolled in Loma Linda Academy's Learning Advancement Program (LAP).

One of the teachers involved said, "I enjoy working with the students and seeing their progress. It's exciting to see them 'making it' and to see the pride in what they are doing."

One of the school administrators observed, "Student reaction is good. They appear relieved of school pressure, less frustrated and more excited about learning. The students are demonstrating academic growth, their attitude and test results have improved, and their regular classroom performance is more accordant with their level."

Twenty full-time students ranging from elementary through academy have been in LAP this year. Parents have expressed their gratitude that the problems of exceptional children are being identified and that trained professionals are helping their children overcome learning difficulties. These and perceptual problems occur throughout the student body at all levels, K-12. The target group is about 2-3 percent of any school population.

Based on the premise that special education is a right and that appropriate education should be made available to all students, the Guidance Department at Loma Linda Academy, in conjunction with the Office of Education of the Southeastern California Conference and the School of Education at Loma Linda University, established a model program for exceptional children in January 1983. "It is time to change the traditional view that Adventist schools do not have the expertise, the time or the money to implement such a program," stated one of its founders.

Students who can benefit from

the program are identified by the regular classroom teacher, by parents or by the students themselves. Extensive professional testing is done with parental consent to identify the extent of the exceptionality and to outline an Individualized Educational Plan which can enhance the student's learning potential. Extensive evaluation is conducted continually to determine progress and future goals.

The school administration, the Board of Directors, the Education Department of the Southeastern California Conference and the constituent churches are all giving strong moral and financial support to the program, which has proven itself very worthwhile during its first year of operation. "We are thrilled and excited about this breakthrough in the Adventist educational system, and plans are under way to continue its implementation," reports Ralph Cline, who directs the LAP program.

Conference Committee Actions

The Conference Executive Committee voted to add Elder ALVARO AZEVEDO to the Educational Board and Elder LOUIS VENDEN to the Personnel Committee.

When Pastor ALBERTO GORDOBIL returns from Andrews University, he will become an associate pastor at the Colton-San Bernardino Spanish Church.

Pastor SAUL BARCELO will serve part time as a Taskforce pastor of the Costa Mesa Spanish Company.

Elder SAUL VISSER will transfer in a few months to be an associate pastor of the La Sierra Spanish Church.

LEON HULSE, of the Potomac Conference, has accepted the call to be administrator of the Loma Linda University Church.

OLD-FASHIONED CAMP MEETING is scheduled for May 25-28 at the Farmers Fairgrounds in Hemet.

Filipino Camp Meeting Slated for May

Filipino Adventists and friends in Northern and Central California conferences will convene for the fifth Annual Camp Meeting to be held May 25-28 (Memorial Day weekend) at Leoni Meadows, located east of Placerville and nestled in the mountains of Grizzly Flats—a lovely place with peaceful surroundings. It is a perfect place to commune with God before the beauty of His creation.

Invited guests to this occasion are Royce C. Williams of It Is Written telecasts; Alberta Mazat from Loma Linda University, department of marriage and family therapy; and George Atiga, Asian/South Pacific ministries director of Pacific Union Conference.

Most of the Filipino brethren remember Elder Williams, who spent many years of mission service in the Philippines as ministerial secretary of North Philippine Union Mission and also as speaker of the Voice of Prophecy there. Then he went on to serve in the Far Eastern Division as ministerial secretary.

Professor Mazat will conduct a seminar on her field of expertise. She has written several books and numerous articles regarding the very important subject of marriage and family. It will be a thrilling experience to listen to and be counseled through her presentation, and it will greatly enhance the family relationship in a Christian context.

Elder Atiga, prior to his current post, was pastor of Central Filipino Church in Los Angeles.

Plan now to attend this camp meeting. Those who have an RV should bring it as housing facilities are limited.

Reach Unlimited Schedules Summer Courses

Last summer the staff of Reach Unlimited began in the Sierra what was hoped would be a growing and successful endeavor.

Directed by Karl Wilcox and started on the campus of Weimar College, a group of eight young people were outfitted for a week of adventure in the Matterhorn Peak area of Yosemite.

The objective was to involve the teen-agers in an active learning experience that would give them a feeling for the values and needs of others as well as promoting a sense of their own dignity and worth. "The entire focus of this adventure," says Mr. Wilcox, "was to unite this group into a solid unit of young Christians capable of action. This course was more than a training for the mountains, it was a training for growth in all dimensions—physical, mental and spiritual."

Because of the growth in interest, Reach Unlimited will offer five different courses this summer. Individuals wishing to have more information should contact the Northern California Conference Youth Department, which sponsors the outings.

The five courses to be offered this summer are:

Mountain Recreation Leadership Course—July 1-15; age 16 and above; cost, $190; limit, 10.

Eight-Day Adventure Course—July 22-29; age 14-18; cost, $100; limit, 10.

High Sierra Backpacking Trek—August 5-15; age 14 and above; cost, $175; limit, 12.

Mount Shasta Ascent—August 31-September 3; age 16 and above; cost, $65; limit, 10.

Mount Whitney Ascent—September 7-10; age 16 and above; cost, $65; limit, 6.

West Point Meets in New Church

Nearly 150 people crowded into the new West Point church for an Open House Sabbath, February 4. One-third of these were visitors from the community.

Progress of the church building and ongoing community outreach programs were shared monthly through the church paper, the "Blue Mountain Views," put together and edited by Joyce Coombs, church treasurer of West Point. "We decided that this church should be a part of the community and that people should know what is going on; so we mail to everyone in town. People really look forward to the paper now," states Mrs. Coombs.

Many hours of labor have seen this project through to completion. Rex and Vern Shepherd, local builders and church members, responded to the need for leadership in implementing the building plans. "Their giving long hours on the project month after month, while carrying on full-time jobs on other construction sites, certainly has made the church a reality," writes Ron Nicholson in "A Miracle Come True," presented at the Open House.

What remains to be done is the sharing of this facility with the community. State it's members, "It is hoped that this building will become more than a building used once a week but rather a spiritual and educational center focusing on health, nutrition, stress management and positive family life, as well as Bible-centered day-to-day spiritual growth."

Open House was held at the new West Point church on February 4.

Yuma School Has Top Ingatherer

Each year the students and teachers of the Yuma Seventh-day Adventist School raise approximately $1,000 of the church Ingathering goal.

For the second year, Rhonda Bromell has been the top student Ingathering fund raiser at the school. In previous years her brothers and sister—Stacy and the twins, Linda and Gary—have held the distinction of being the top student Ingatherer. Rhonda is continuing the tradition by bringing in $150 to $200 for Ingathering each year. She is a sixth-grader and an active Pathfinder also.

Walter Webb, principal of the school and Rhonda's teacher, said he is very proud of her and all of the other young people who work so faithfully to help the school reach its goal.

Dr. and Mrs. Bromell are the parents of these top student Ingatherers from the Yuma church school.

Where?

At Central's 106th Camp Meeting at Soquel.

When?

Thursday, July 26, through Sabbath, August 4.

Announcing the annual summer encampment, President Charles Cook said:

"The trend to more classes and seminars continues because our people have clearly indicated that's what they like."

Reservation cards should be available in Central's churches by Sabbath, April 21.

Applications for cabins, tents, or recreational-vehicle spaces should be submitted immediately. Randomized processing begins Monday, May 14.

Vice President for Finance Gordon Bullock noted that there will be no increase in camp meeting reservation fees again this year.

President Cook said he was pleased to be able to present such an outstanding lineup of Biblical scholars.

Dr. Wallenkampf, an emeritus professor of religion, has been a member of the General Conference Biblical Research Committee.

Dr. Bacchiocchi, who teaches at Andrews University, was a prize-winning student of the history of the Sabbath at the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome. He has published books on the subject and lectured in churches and at camp meetings.

Dr. Coon, former pastor and teacher, is on the staff of the Ellen White Estate at the General Conference.

Pastor Rutan, a retired Central California minister, has made the sanctuary doctrine a special study.

Pastor VanDenburgh, minister at Palo Alto, has been a popular camp-meeting preacher for several years, usually speaking on themes from the Pauline epistles.

Pastor West, director of the Conference Ministerial Association, plans a seminar on preaching, according to President Cook.

The president said that many other personalities will have presentations at Soquel this year.

Reservations Supervisor Joan Fenn said that cabins—for Central California Conference members only who are 70 and above—will cost $100. Other fees: Tents—$75; RV spaces—$100 ranging down to $50, depending on the level of utility service desired.

Mrs. Fenn said that it is imperative for RV-space applicants to indicate the exact overall length of the unit since spaces are assigned by length.

Persons from other conferences may apply June 1.

Annual VBS Workshop Slated for Soquel

Vacation Bible Schools are usually the biggest evangelistic program conducted in the summer by Adventist churches. Baptisms will follow if they are properly conducted and followed up.

The annual Vacation Bible School Workshop will be held at Soquel April 20 and 21 around this year's theme: "Jesus Is My Friend." The program will feature training for every aspect of conducting a successful VBS. Pacific Union Conference Sabbath School Director James Hardin will give the keynote address Friday evening. Carol Ann Retzer, a classroom music teacher and VBS music director, will teach new VBS music.

In addition to reports from various VBS leaders Sabbath morning, Loma Linda University Religion Professor Gordon Matison will present the sermon.

Janet Evert, director of a successful VBS in Oxnard, will share her "Adopt a Lamb" follow-up program during the Sabbath-afternoon session. Erling Calkins, editor of the VBS Directors Manual, will meet with all VBS directors.

Division leaders from pre-kindergarten through earliteen will meet separately with instructors for specialized help. The earliteen leaders will meet with Elder Hardin, who developed the earliteen program.

Says Central's Sabbath School Director Darold Retzer, "This division has the greatest potential for baptisms because the earliteens are old enough to make a decision to be baptized. We hope more churches will add this division."

Saturday night the crafts will be demonstrated, and supplies may be purchased.

Persons desiring to attend the VBS Workshop may reserve by calling the Sabbath School Department at (209) 291-7700. The cost of $30.15 includes a night's lodging, four meals, and the registration fee. Those who commute will be charged $3.85 per meal plus the $10 registration fee.

Students Experience Reality of Religion

Participation in the activities of local churches moves religion from theory to reality—besides giving students valuable lessons in sharing their faith. This is the view of Bakersfield Adventist Academy Principal Robert Taylor, whose junior and senior Bible-class students have conducted church services designed specifically for teens.

"In addition," says Principal Taylor, "students have held services for the adult members at the Bakersfield Southside and Taft churches.

"Members of the sophomore class have also assisted with a cooking school sponsored by the Bakersfield Central Church," reports Principal Taylor.

• Fire destroyed a major portion of the Livingston Spanish church. Members are planning to rebuild the damaged portion. Meanwhile they are sharing with the church next door, according to Association Officer Frank LaRose.

• Approximately 600 people took one or more of the health-education programs sponsored by the Department of Health and Family Life during a recent two-month period. Director Wayne Griffith says about 90 percent of the attendees were non-members. For one man it was the first contact with the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Dr. Charles Edwards' seminars "Coping With Stress" were attended by 266 people, primarily non-Adventist nurses seeking continuing-education credit hours. And from January 21 to March 10 more than 500 people heard Dr. Kay Kuzma's "Filling Your Love Cup" family-life seminar.

Singles Schedule Weekly MVIP Nite

The Hollywood Church has been selected as the location for a weekly meeting of Singles in Action. All singles are invited every Wednesday night to the MVIP (Meet Very Interesting People) program beginning with a social hour at seven.

The program will meet the four basic needs of singles—spiritual, relational-social, educational and recreational—and will feature song service, speakers, Bible study and/or talk-it-over groups led by trained enablers.

The caring ministry of Singles in Action will be developed through the hospitality time which will encourage singles to help others who are in need or have specific areas of concern. The two-hour program will conclude with recreation designed to promote fitness.

MVIP Nite is under the directorship of Lorraine Thomas, Gloria Davidson and David Wilkens.

Mrs. Thomas says, "Singles have long wanted a weekly meeting in Los Angeles where they may fellowship and meet new friends. They also need a spiritual lift in mid-week. Our program will encourage personal growth as singles learn to relate to each other in a safe, Christian environment. We hope that singles from all over the greater Los Angeles area will gather at the Hollywood church every Wednesday to Meet Very Important People. And tell a friend!"

D. E. CASLOW, a retired personal-ministries director now living in Portland, presented information on Christian discipleship at a recent ministerial workers meeting in Glendale. Elder Caslow has prepared a new manual on discipling and a series of four special Sabbath school quarterlies on the discipling of new members. The first quarter is "New Life"; second quarter, "Christian Discipleship"; third quarter, "Personal Ministry"; and fourth quarter, "Church Fellowship." These are to be used in a regular Sabbath school class for new members during their first year of church membership. All this material is available through the ABC.

Mid-City Pathfinders Receive Trophy

During the latter part of 1983, the Mid-City Pathfinder Club applied and was invited to be a part of the annual Granada Hills "Youth in Action" parade. The route passed through two miles of the San Fernando Valley community.

As a result of its participation, the club was awarded a first-place trophy in the marching category. Connie Saunders, the club director, says, "It was a beautiful experience for both staff and club members."

Hers was the highest total of any public relations secretary in the Conference.

• A special Christmas program was presented by young people of the Watts community on December 23 at the Truth Center, with more than 100 persons attending. The program of music and poetry was entitled "For Unto Us a Child Is Born." Afterward, Christmas gifts were given to about 300 community children. The gifts had been donated by the students of the Los Angeles Union Seventh-day Adventist School, the University Church (in Los Angeles) Bell Choir, and the St. Lawrence Catholic Church.

• The Simi Valley Church hosted two Caring Ministry seminars during 1983. Participants in the fall session included three ministers and six members of churches in the community who expressed appreciation for the fellowship and friendship extended.

Literature Evangelist Reaps Miracle Sales

Early in 1983 the Pacific Union Publishing Department voted as a reward for any literature evangelist who made sales of $100,000 or more for the year an expenses-paid trip to the Holy Land for the literature evangelist and spouse.

Though working a territory some considered too small, Frank Cometa accepted the challenge. He divided the overall amount into a goal for each month then one for each week, praying that a miracle would be worked to help him reach the people but above all that God's name might be glorified.

A series of miracles unfolded. First, Mr. Cometa sold a set of books to a Jehovah's Witness lady. Later, after prayer about where to canvass, Frank Cometa was impressed to visit the lady. She offered to accompany him to her relatives' homes, and they bought nearly $1,000 worth of books.

Later, two Protestant ministers bought books from Mr. Cometa. On several occasions these ministers accompanied him to their parishioners' homes, where Mr. Cometa placed many sets of the Family Home Library and the Economy Library.

At the close of the third quarter, Frank Cometa was $36,000 short of the goal. Could he boost his sales from $8,000 per month to $12,000? Not without a bigger miracle.

The bigger miracle came when Frank met a Catholic nun, a school teacher, who decided The Bible Story set would benefit her students. She gave him a list of parents, with names and grades of their children, having circled the names of the most likely prospects. Occasionally she called prospects and encouraged them to buy the books.

Frank Cometa had prayed for a miracle of $100,000. When figures for the year were tallied, he had $102,572.75, with a minimum percentage of life-to-date accounts. His experience is an encouragement for others to reach out in faith.

Notice from the city of Los Angeles emphasizes that trash collection does include large bulky items—but only if they know in advance. Things like mattresses, couches, chairs, even washers and refrigerators will be hauled away. However, why not call your Inner City Center or Community Services office if what you have are repairable items? The city trash collection number is 485-3381. Your own church may be a good place to start calling for usable materials. Keep in mind that those who receive even our free items in their temporary times of need don't want just discards; send only things which you would deem usable if you were on the receiving end.

A CHECK FOR $125,000 PASSED FROM PRESIDENT V. NORSKOV OLSEN, Ph.D., D.Th., to R. Dale McCune, Ed.D., La Sierra campus provost. The check came from the University Councillors, a group of businessmen and women who give the University input on critical issues. The check brought the total contribution from the group to $185,000, a little over half of the group's goal. The funds went to the dedication of the largest amphitheater in the one-year-old E. E. Cossentine Hall, named after the past president of La Sierra College and treasurer of the Councillors since the group's inception. Some of those in the photograph are: W. J. Blacker, vice president for financial administration, President Olsen, William Will, Merrit Horning, M.D., Samuel Fritz, M.D., Tom Zapara, Provost McCune, Joseph Yamamoto, D.D.S., Charles Rosvall, Mac McAnally, Dale Fisher.

Built only 30 feet from the ocean at high tide, the two-story classroom/administration building is 45 by 90 feet. Because an occasional wave has been known to reach back that far, the volunteers filled the voids of the blocks with cement to a height of four feet for reinforcement. Floyd Smith, retired minister from Pleasant Hill, Oregon, was chief mason.

Rodney Muraviov earned his keep sifting the coarse coral sand for the mortar mix to be used in the new Marshall Islands Mission Academy.

News Notes

SUMMER IS COMING, but why not put that time to use? Every year LLU La Sierra operates a large summer-school program. For a list of the course offerings available, write to Admissions and Recruitment, Loma Linda University, Riverside, CA 92515.

THE FOURTH LARGEST DEPARTMENT in the College of Arts and Sciences attained the position through developing a major in health science, according to Walter Hamerslough, chairman of the health, physical education and recreation department. The health science major originally developed as a degree for those intending to enter graduate education in public health, said Dr. Hamerslough; but students interested in pre-professional programs such as dentistry, medicine, and the allied health professions started enrolling in it because they saw it as good career preparation. This year the major has undergone more changes, including the addition of an option in health education and a route to the Adventist teaching credential in health science. For information write the department at Loma Linda University, Riverside, CA 92515.

FOR THE FOURTH SUMMER SENIOR ADULTS from across the country will attend Elderhostel, a one-week low-cost program of non-credit education for those 60 years of age or older. The course offerings include Contemporary Africa, Sexuality for Older Adults, Creative Writing, Speed Reading, Rights in Conflict: Current Issues in Law and Society, Consumer Protection, Childhood Revisited, Existential Literature, Human Nutrition, and Humor in American Literature: Benjamin Franklin to Woody Allen. The week-long sessions will run June 24-30, July 8-14 and July 15-21. For more information, write to Student Affairs, Loma Linda University, Riverside, CA 92515.

THE ANNUAL ALUMNI SPRING RETREAT, May 25 to 27, will feature Thomas Blincoe, Ph.D., a former professor at LLU La Sierra and former dean of the Adventist Theological Seminary. Virginia Richards Cason, an alumna, will speak for the devotionals. Jeff Kaatz, an alumnus and a member of the music faculty, is coordinating the music for the event. The cost, "somewhere around $30," includes six meals and two nights of lodging at the Boy Scouts of America Training Camp in Brea Canyon, site of the event. For reservations contact: Charles Chavez, 5564 Del Loma, San Gabriel, CA 91775, or call (213) 286-6731; or Robert Lorenz, M.D., 1500 Chevy Chase, Glendale, CA 91206, or call (818) 246-0317.

A SELECT GROUP OF LOCAL DIGNITARIES attended the March 1 groundbreaking for LLU La Sierra's new business center, a complex which will add 18,000 square feet to the existing La Sierra Market and a separate building for the Soupstone, a vegetarian restaurant. The center will allow for expansion of the University bookstore and bring in local business. According to University administration, the center will aid the campus's ability to continue offering jobs to students. Each year the campus hires about 1,000 students, spending nearly $2 million on student wages.

THE UNIVERSITY SINGERS, a mixed chorus of 40 members, performed in Hawaii March 20-28. The group performed at Hawaiian Mission Academy, Kaneohe Adventist church, the Japanese Adventist church, and the Central Adventist church. About 20 friends and relatives accompanied the group bringing the total entourage to about 60, according to Don Thurber, music department chairman and choir director. The group took along guitarist Steve Mitchell, flautist Brenda Porco, and Lori Rapique, pianist.

Situated at the end of a runway used during World War II, the school is built on land leased from the first Adventist on the island. No land is ever for sale on Majuro but is passed from one generation to the next.

Each student earned $200 of his or her own airfare and then was subsidized by members of the 22 constituent churches. Adult volunteers were primarily from Alhambra, East Los Angeles, and the German churches. Arriving home on March 11, the students were back in school the next day—though all the girls were ready to return to Majuro!
