School Recognizes Scholarship in First Honors Convocation

The first annual Honors Convocation, a ceremony destined to become a tradition at Union College, was held in the college chapel May 8. Recognition was given to senior students graduating with the recommendation of the major department. All these students have a "B" average in their major field for their four years of college work. Class honors were received by students in all classes who had a "B" average in all subjects the two preceding semesters except in the case of freshmen, who qualified with a "B" average in the first semester of their college work.

Dr. Dick, who spoke on "Scholarship in the Liberal Arts College," explained the purpose and true value of a liberal arts education. He stated that it makes vital changes in the individual, refashions the whole personality, and that it prepares the person for life in its most abundant sense.

President E. E. Cossentine conferred the honors upon the deserving students.

After the conferring of the honors, Miss Estelle Kiehnhoff sang, and the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Engel played the postlude.

The following students were the honors candidates for 1944:

Bond Officiates at Large Investiture

The largest investiture service ever held at Union College was conducted Friday evening, May 5, when 117 certificates and insignia were presented to 81 Missionary Volunteers in the college auditorium. Almost all the 37 senior Missionary Volunteers received Master Comrade awards, while the 44 juniors were invested as Sunbeams, Builders, and Friends.

Preceding the actual investiture of the group, C. L. Bond, associate M. V. secretary of the General Conference, addressed the audience, outlining the origin and progress of the Missionary Volunteer Progressive Class Work, the four classes of achievement, and the value of the movement to the youth. A candle-lighting service, including all those invested, portrayed the rapid work and growth of the organization.

Elder G. R. Fattic, M. V. secretary of the Central Union, and T. S. Copeland, M. V. secretary of the Nebraska Conference, together with Elder Bond, presented the awards.

Those responsible for preparing and presenting the program were Mrs. E. N. Dick, leader of the senior group, and Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Ogden, leaders of the juniors.

Alumni Banquet to Conclude Year

The annual Union College alumni banquet will be held at one p. m., May 21 in the college dining room. President E. E. Cossentine, Dr. E. N. Dick, president of the alumni association, and Dr. W. Elder W. H. Howard, president of the Nebraska Conference, died suddenly in Omaha, Tuesday night in Elder A. A. Leiske's temple. He collapsed shortly after he had addressed a council of ministers and workers. Elder Leiske had completed his sermon and the audience had filed out.

Age 60, Elder Howard lived in College View and had been a member of the Union College board of trustees for several years, and was also a member of the Central Union Conference committee.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Howard, and a son, Walter Jr. Funeral services were conducted at 2:30 p. m. May 12, in the College View church.

Fifty-third Commencement Ceremonies May 19-21

Garden Party Comes

Daring all clouds that hung in the sky, the women of North Hall held their traditional garden party on the campus May 14. Guests included all members of the school family.

To begin the entertainment, all the girls took part in the lilac chain—without lilacs! Led by small Cherry Beaven, they marched single file out of the dormitory and down the front walk in two lines singing "Springtime". Vivian Meyers gave the welcome after which Veldonna Jensen read an original poem. A May Day formation led by Fern Lorenz and a Maypole led by Mary Pritchard were next on the program. "Little Letters to God" were read by Phyllis Follett Marcy Hartman, Mercedes England and Laura Jarnes, and a Hawaiian scene was staged by four girls and led by Dorothy McConaughy. Eileen Mayberry's speech choir gave a patriotic skit while Milton Prout sang.

Special music was furnished by an accordion duet played by Evelyn Beebe and Virginia Tubbs; the girls chorus directed by Delphia Dufloth; a girls' orchestra directed by Darleen Lenz; and a violin solo by Jeanette Hause.

After refreshments, Darryl Ogden played "Taps" to close the entertainment.

hour to contribute to the atmosphere of reverence and worship. Direct transcription records furnish music of exceptional tone and quality.

A plaque bearing the inscription of the class will be hung in the hall near the chapel.

37 Seniors Will Receive Bachelor of Arts Degrees

Commencement exercises for the fifty-third graduating class will be held beginning Friday, May 19, with the consecration service. Speaker for this service is to be Dr. J. M. Howell, former dean of Union College and now principal of Forrest Lake Academy in Florida. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Elder J. W. Turner, president of the Southwestern Union, and the commencement address by Dr. W. H. Teesdale, associate secretary of the educational department of the General Conference.

Golden Cords Hung for "Union's Own"

As a Union College tradition and annual event, the hanging of the golden cords in the college chapel for those alumni and former students who have sailed for foreign mission service took place the evening of May 12. The following is a list of those for whom cords were hung and the country to which they have sailed:

Edmund Clifford—class of '41—to South America.

Claribel Babcock Clifford—to South America.

Audra Wood—to Hawaii.

Marcedene Wood—to Hawaii.

Helen Kono—class of '44—to Hawaii.

Alger Johns—to Egypt.

Genevieve Carpenter Johns—to Egypt.

Elder N. C. Wilson, president of the Central Union conference, and Dr. E. N. Dick spoke at the vesper hour. Faculty members of the college who have been missionaries in foreign countries were present on the rostrum. J. N. Anderson, the first Seventh-day Adventist missionary to China, offered the consecration prayer.

Students of the college who have dedicated their future life in service as foreign missionaries manifested their intentions to the student body.

Special music was provided by a double male quartet and the instrumental ensemble under the direction of Professor C. C. Engel.

To preface the hanging of the golden cords, Elder J. W. Rowland and Elder Gordon Zytoskee spoke at the vesper hour held the evening of April 28 in the college chapel. Elder Rowland, who is a returned missionary from China, explained the preparation those must make who have been called for foreign service. Elder Zytoskee, a Unionite of the class of '41, challenged his listeners to answer the call of the golden cords. He and his wife, Evelyn McWilliams, class of '40, will sail for the Arabic Union sometime next month.

Juniors Entertain Seniors at Annual Banquet

The junior class entertained the senior class of 1944 at the annual junior-senior banquet held in the Georgian room at the Cornhusker Hotel, May 2, with President and Mrs. E. E. Cossentine as guests of honor. Dr. H. G. Reinmuth, senior sponsor, Mrs. Reinmuth, Dr. E. M. Hause, junior sponsor, and Mrs. Hause were also guests.

Carrying their early school days into the theme of the program, the juniors took the seniors back to the grade school days of the little red schoolhouse type as the instrumental ensemble struck the opening note of the program playing "School Days." Elmer Herr, Schoolmaster of Ceremonies, welcomed the 106 enrolled for an interesting and eventful school year.

Highlights of the school year were talks given by the two "visiting" speakers, the county superintendent, Dr. Hause, and a "Lyceum Number" given by Dr. Reinmuth. Mid-Semester honors and promotions were announced by Eileen Mayberry. Brief talks were given by Wilbur Chapman, president of the junior class and Harold Wernick, president of the senior class.

President E. E. Cossentine, congratulating the seniors on their graduation, pointed out that since their entrance into the first grade as youngsters, they had fought hard to attain their goal. He commended them on their courage and steadfastness and in keeping their trust and faith, assuring them that definite rewards were ahead.

Musical numbers on the program included a trombone solo, "Soloette" by George F. Briegel, played by Ernest Herr. The junior male quartet composed of Vernon Koenig, Ernest Herr, Lawrence Rahn, and Benny Liebelt sang a number entitled, "A Little Close Harmony" by Geoffrey O'Hara. The instrumental ensemble under the direction of Delmer Holbrook furnished the dinner music for the evening.

A Greater Vision . . .

Fifty-three years ago a vision was conceived and an institution was born. An enterprising group of men had a dream of what the future held and made their dream come true.

"The College of the Golden Cords," the title our own beloved school has so competently earned, is proud of its name. Down through the years it has been pouring forth a steady stream of dedicated, consecrated youth into the fields "white already to harvest." As the graduating classes leave Union's doors, they take with them the education for the life ahead. They have been trained for thoroughness and efficiency by earning a part of their way in the college industries; they have developed healthy bodies by living on a well-regulated schedule that provides adequate exercise, rest and food. The life of learning also gives them a balanced curriculum of scholarship, and, yet, the cultural and social side is not left uncultivated. Last, but by far the most important, is the development of the prayer life, which is given a chance for daily, hourly growth.

Union's own are represented in practically every niche of the earth, and each one has planted in his heart that loyalty to standard and sense of responsibility a worker in the Master's vineyard must have.

To you at the other end of the golden cords, we say, "Our praise for your loyalty and inspiration." To you and you who aspire to a Christian education—an education for life—we who have been here say, "Please come! Our doors are wide, our hearts are full of welcome. We need you to take our places and to accept the challenge of the future."

Union is eager to teach, to inspire, and to prepare you for the "life that counts."

Come and GROW.

E. M. A.

Speaking of the Golden Cords . . .

"It is almost out! Surely, you must know that the 1944 GOLDEN CORDS—the best yearbook Union ever published—will be in your hands immediately!" With this "windy" announcement, one of the GOLDEN CORDS staff members attempted to impress this CLOCK TOWER reporter with the superiority of this year's annual.

In spite of numerous difficulties encountered in obtaining all the material used in making a 135 page book, the GOLDEN CORDS staff is succeeding in its task. The yearbook will be placed in the hands of the subscribers not later than Wednesday, May 17. There is the possibility that this date may be advanced.

Several of the outstanding features of the 1944 GOLDEN CORDS are: an emphasis on revealing the finer arts of life as seen at Union; an address index of all students and faculty members; vivid, full-page ink drawings separating each of the sections; and, as a salute to the Unionites now in the armed services of our country, the first page of the yearbook has a beautiful color U. S. flag.

"Judge not, that ye be not judged." Do not think yourself better than other men, and set yourself up as their judge. Since you cannot discern motive, you are incapable of judging another. In criticizing him, you are passing sentence upon yourself; for you show that you are a participant with Satan, the accuser of the brethren. The Lord says, "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves." This is our work." (Italics this reporter's.) p. 314 of DESIRE OF AGES by E. G. White.

Pure heart—refined life . . . . .

It is highly regrettable that some of us characterize culture as something that will eliminate spontaneous joy from our lives, make us extremely formal and gradually separate us from our friends by a wall of pseudo-culture based on pride. Culture involves a lovely quality of the soul, not a mask that is removed at will. Culture accompanies purity of thought and the possession of noble ideals based on the love of God and mankind. One of its manifestations is in the observance of good rules of conduct; this regard for refinement of act and word springs from an inner, higher desire to bless others; it does not derive from an attempt to impress others with our supposedly careful observance of etiquette rules.

In retrospect I peer back through the lenses of memory to the days when we were just children looking ahead worshipfully to the days when we would be grown-up, sophisticated college students. It seemed to me then that it would be a miracle should I ever reach that status in life.

And now I look around and it dawns on me that we have reached we notice bright skirts, tweeds, prints, sport shirts, collegiate tweeds, with a darker hue and a ministerial air interspersed freely. These are a part of a little child's dream fulfilled, but that's only half. The sophistication, if it's there at all, is only a veneer hiding the same child-like bewildered feeling; for now and then a familiar face betrays a questioning look, "What will happen to me tomorrow?" or "Am I doing my best for God and my country?" Unconsciously or consciously we reach for the Hand that we have learned to trust and ask in child-like simplicity only to follow.

We clean our specks in a vain effort to see the scenes ahead but we cannot. We remain here preparing as best we know how for our niche in the world.

Beyond this preparatory period—in what circumstance we know not—we cannot help seeing men and women still trusting, still being led by their God and working for Him until the day when without our specks we see our Master Teacher in the College of Eternity.

Sportin' Sports

The juniors win again! Out to defend their unbroken string of sporting triumphs the junior class edged out the hard fighting freshmen to win first place in the total points for all events at the school picnic. Winning three first and a second in different events totalled 235 points for the juniors to a close 225 for the freshmen. The juniors are amply justified in crowing a little (they do it too—it marks their third year of dominance in sports at Union, as freshman, then sophomores, and now as juniors they have shown their heels to all comers.

Highlights of the day—Wilbur Chapman's home run with the bases loaded, Don Tarr's mile run, the faculty men's race (comment withheld) with Dean Jarnes coming in first, Lewis's 100 yard dash and Charles Sietz' superb pitching.

Weather Permits Early Breakfast

Defying whatever the Nebraska weather man might predict, the freshmen class held its early-morning breakfast Sunday, May 7. The group left North Hall about 4:30 and tramped its way through the dark to Roberts Park.

Before breakfast the more wide-awake members of the party played on the merry-go-round and swings. When the light made the surroundings more distinguishable, large group games were conducted.

Several freshmen took their turn at frying eggs over the hot grills. In addition to eggs they ate bread and butter, steaming hot chocolate, cookies, and (despite the shivers) heaping dips of ice cream. Dean P. C. Jarnes and Miss Lesie Culpepper accompanied the freshmen.

Senior Sketches

Raymond Osborne

Hailing from mile-high Colorado is Raymond Osborne. Though he has traveled in forty states, Central America, Mexico, and Canada, Colorado is still his favorite state. A religion major, his minor is history.

During his high school years he attended a high school in Texas, Campion Academy, Sheyenne River Academy, and Grand Junction, Colorado, high school.

During most of his three-year stay at Union, Raymond has worked in the Kay-Dee factory. He has participated in several of the campus activities, having been Greek Club president, Clock Tower headline writer, M. V. leader, and Sabbath school teacher. He will begin his ministerial internship in Nebraska.

He considers Radio Speaking his favorite and most enjoyable college course. Nothing satisfies his appetite like macaroni and cheese. It provokes him when programs are announced for 8 o'clock sharp and then begin at 8:30.

While Raymond was attending Madison College at Nashville, Tennessee, he met the girl who is now Mrs. Osborne. They live in College View and have two small daughters.

WAYNE MOORE

After beginning his scholastic career in Nebraska, Wayne Moore moved to Minnesota with his parents. Here he attended Maplewood Academy for four years and upon graduating came to Union. By the end of the summer session he will have completed his major in religion and minor in history.

During his stay at Union he has been able to develop his hobby of music. He works in the press at present, in fact, he will probably have a hand in the printing of this issue of the Clock Tower. (Proof readers will see that nothing of this is taken out!)

In the line of sports he enjoys a good clean game of basket ball or base ball. He also appears to enjoy the social contacts with different students!

The part of his life that he feels means the most to him is the time he spent in the canvassing field. This was also a means of coming to college. Next year he will continue his work along this line as he is going to Texas as a colporteur intern.

Class Entertained by President

Guessing games, intelligence test, smelling games, readings and music kept the seniors and their wives on their toes at the entertainment given by President and Mrs. E. E. Cossentine, the evening of May 8. Other guests were Elder and Mrs. W. H. Howard, Elder and Mrs. N. C. Wilson, and Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Reinmuth.

To begin the evening's entertainment, a vigorous handshake was staged, after which ten persons who remembered the fifteenth person they shook hands with had to share their wealth by giving them the dimes they held. Another game which tested the power of observation required that the guests identify the silhouettes of the "famous people" pinned on the wall. Sue Russell was the winner.

Woodrow Baker was able to name the most words beginning with the letter "T" in twenty seconds. Mrs. Herbert Kunsman won the contest testing the sense of smell.

Elder Wilson gave a short informal talk in which he reminded the seniors that they were living in challenging times.

Oscar Torkelson and Virginia Pate gave readings. Everyone came out a winner in the intelligence test which revealed that "refreshments were ready." The guests feasted on ice cream, topped with fresh strawberries, cake, and postum, after which they departed.

Dear Old Union

It won't be long now till college days for some of us will be over. It doesn't really seem possible that this longed-for time is here. We are very reluctant to have the end of our stay here with you come so soon because we know that we will never step on your campus again with the same feeling of belonging to you as we have now. We will be a part of something else we have not yet learned to love as we do you.

As we leave these buildings and classrooms, we will always hear the wind howling around the corners, the chimes from the Clock Tower, the happy voices of friends, familiar footsteps coming down the halls, and the streetcar struggling down the tracks to Lincoln. These things will be only a pleasant memory to bring down from the shelf to dust off whenever we get lonely.

The things we will meet when we are gone will not always be that for which we have prepared and planned to meet—things will go hard. At times we will feel like giving up everything, but the thought of you and what you stand for will prod us on to even greater things.

Union, we thank you for the memories we have of you, for all that you have done for us. God give us strength to keep your spirit always in our hearts to light the lamp of hope for others.

—A Senior.

Jr.-Sr. Sponsors Entertain Classes

Sponsors of the junior and senior classes, Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Hause and Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Reinmuth, entertained the two classes in the college chapel the evening of May 11. A picture entitled "Moonlight Sonata" was shown, after which refreshments were served. Previous plans were somewhat altered because of circumstances which were beyond control of both the sponsors and the classes.

Milton Prout has innovated a new use for his baby buggy. . . . He was seen proudly pushing the vehicle up to the front door of the Union College library and then inside—but no sound was forthcoming from the buggy occupants, for there they were in calmest repose, none other than three armloads of books!

Mr. Christensen: "That's a woman for you—always taking a man's name!"

Final Program

The final Saturday-night program of the year will be given by the speech and music departments May 20 in the college chapel at nine p. m.

Two orations to be given by James Pogue and Oscar Torkelson, and a reading to be given by one Nickle will constitute the part presented by the speech department. The music department will present two-piano four-hand and eight-hand selections, two vocal solos, one violin solo, and piano solos.

Colporteurs are Consecrated

Elder N. C. Wilson, president of the Central Union conference, spoke at the church service May 6. He pointed out, by relating several actual experiences, that God still loves and watches over His people in times of perplexity and tumult.

Because of the tumult of the present world, one of the lessons that God's people must learn is that the work which should have been done in peace will have to be done in times of perplexity, he declared. To prove that the organized work is progressing in spite of handicaps, he pointed out increases in the Ingathering and publishing work.

"One of the lessons that God would have us learn is that 'in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man is coming.' We need to pray earnestly that God will help us live as if the Saviour were coming today," Elder Wilson declared.

At the conclusion of the sermon, Elder C. G. Cross, field missionary secretary of the Central Union, called all the student colporteurs to the front for the consecration service. Elder P. D. Gerard, field missionary secretary of the Northern Union, gave the charge and offered the dedicatory prayer.

Evelyn Prussia, a student here last year, visited friends at the college over the past week-end.

Music Recital

Thirty-four students of Mrs. H. C. Hartman, instructor in piano, participated in two recitals during the past week. The first was held in the studio on May 2, and consisted of piano duets and solos.

May 6, in the college chapel, was the setting for the second recital, which consisted of solos, duets,

School Picnic -- in Spite of Everything

Our conniving teachers have, it seems, developed a new scheme for keeping reluctant scholars at their books. In years heretofore on the eve of the school picnic all was excitement—the study period was a positive impossibility and the teachers resigned themselves to fate and let the students forget their books in anticipation of the day ahead. But sorrowfully we must report that the present array of professors are a clever bunch. They fooled the entire school body! They publicly proclaimed Wednesday, May 10, as the day for the school picnic. The trusting students studied on Monday night with their usual diligence and Tuesday morning dutifully gathered their books and were off to classes.

But now the great deception becomes apparent for no sooner had Bob and Garth and dozens of others slumped into their chairs for their "first period snooze" when the general alarm "picnic" went the rounds. Now don't misunderstand, we are not complaining—the day was perfect—the food was tantalizing—the picnic was tops. But why waste a perfectly good study period on German?

It is needless to recall all the incidents which make the school picnic a red letter day in any school year, for instance the blazing sun, raw onions for dinner, potato chips, the racing events with Lewis and Tarr topping the field, the high-jump with stratosphere-minded

The sprained ankles, sunburned faces and aching muscles will soon be gone and the picnic will be a pleasant memory.

Academy Notes

The senior class was royally entertained by the junior class at a banquet held Thursday night, April 27, at the Venden home. The tables were appropriately decorated in the senior colors—red and white. The white tablecloths made a pleasing background for the red salad on green lettuce leaves, the red and white candles, the dishes of celery and rose radishes, and the bouquets of red and white roses.

When dinner was over, Shirley Morris, mistress of ceremonies, introduced the speakers. Hollis Reinmuth, junior president, and Keith Wheeler, senior president, gave speeches. Since Mr. A. D. Holmes, senior sponsor, was away on business, Mrs. Holmes read the speech he was to have given. The program by the juniors consisted of a violin duet by Marjorie Tryon and Jeanette Hause, a reading by Lois Marie Alexander, a vocal trio by Shirley Morris, Ruth Benton, and Doris Venden, the class prophecy by Lois Ritchie (an original poem written by Ruth Benton), and a male quartette by Hollis Reinmuth, Billy Bob Widener, Harold Clark, and Gene Aaby. For the closing number Shirley Morris and Francis Paap gave toasts to the future success of each one present.

Agnes Nichols entertained the members of the sophomore class and Miss Lillian Larson, their sponsor, at her home Thursday evening, April 27. The big event of the evening was a honey taffy pull, which proved to be a real success. After playing a number of games, they enjoyed the following refreshments: root beer floats, assorted sandwiches, potato chips, pickles, salad, and cake.

Jeanette Hause and Billy Bob Widener both participated in the first May Day Festival of the Lincoln Music Teachers' Association. Jeanette played on her violin "Romance" from Wieniawski's "Violin Concerto in G Minor." Billy Bob played a clarinet number, "Adagio" from Terzett, by Beethoven.

Mr. Holmes, sponsor of the senior class, and Mrs. Holmes entertained the seniors in room 301 of the administration building Sunday night, May 7. They saw two films—"Wheels across India" and "Wheels across Africa." After games they were served refreshments of ice cream and home made cakes.

The members of the English III class have just completed interesting projects which consist of notebooks, posters, and models of characters and places in English literature.
