Faculty Entertain Students in Homes

Eleven faculty members and their families were hosts to the students at the annual faculty parties held on Saturday night, November 7.

When the students met in the chapel at seven o'clock they were told only that they would be going to one of the faculty member's homes. Student leaders had already been notified of their part in the evening's activities.

As each leader was announced, those who wished to join his group came forward and were soon on their way, only the leader knowing where. It is reported that the student leaders had quite a time leading their groups on round-about excursions to their respective homes.

Harry Georgeson reports on the good time at Mrs. Harter's home. As Elaine Ferris told intriguing tales of Harlan County, Kentucky, around the dim light of the fireplace, chills crept up and down

Five Seniors Honored in Who's Who

By CAROL CANTRELL

Five senior students have received their certificates of merit indicating that they are to be included in the 1960 "Who's Who among American Universities and Colleges." These students were chosen by the faculty and student body because of their leadership and scholarship record and also because they show good evidence of being leaders of tomorrow.

Maureen Drake proudly claims Texas as her home, where she attended both grade school and high school in Santa Anna.

Maureen Drake

For a year after graduation from high school in 1954 she worked as a receptionist for an Adventist doctor, from whom she first learned of Seventh-day Adventists. In July, 1955, after attending evangelistic meetings, she was baptized and came to Madison that fall to take nursing. She graduated in August, 1959, and is now working on her B.S. degree.

Maureen has been active in various phases of college life. She was treasurer of the Delta Nu Zeta in 1957 and president in 1958. She has also been on the MADISONIAN staff. During her senior year she was a representative from the Nurses' Club to the Tennessee Association of Student Nurses.

Patricia Rosenthal, a native of Minnesota, graduated from Forest

Patricia Rosenthal

Lake Academy, Florida. She began her college course at Southern Missionary College and then came to Madison College to enter nursing.

During her college days she has been assistant superintendent and teacher in the kindergarten department, MV leader, secretary, and pianist, Sabbath school superintendent and secretary, choir member, president of the choir council, vice president of the Ushers' Club, Southern Accent typist and reporter, editor of the Cumberland Echoes, and president of the Nurses' Club.

One of the home-grown students from Madison College Academy is Ronald Schmale. After graduating from the academy in 1954, he decided to prepare for his career in Medical Technology here at Madison College.

While working on his B.S. degree he has held various offices such as being business manager of the MADISONIAN and vice president of the Micro-Gamma Club. This year he is president of the senior class.

When his college work terminates, he plans to follow his profession in either Tennessee or Arizona.

Patricia Mitzelfelt Silver was born here at Madison College, although, before she was ready for school, her parents moved to Illinois. She took her academy work at Walla Walla, Washington, and South Lancaster, Massachusetts.

Patricia Silver

In 1950 she returned to Madison as a college freshman. In 1952, the year she was married to Bob W. Silver, she was editor of the Cumberland Echoes. She has also served on the MADISONIAN staff.

Coming from a family of musicians, she has always been active in the field of music, having participated in instrumental and choral organizations and in vocal and instrumental ensembles since her academy days. Her major is science, and her minors are music and English.

During the past two years she has been on the Music Department staff as a part-time teacher while she is finishing college. Upon completion of her course she plans to continue teaching and hopes someday to teach chemistry.

Alice Surdahl comes from the Western state of Montana, her home town being Bozeman.

During academy days she attended Mt. Ellis Academy, graduating in May, 1956.

She has taken an active part in different clubs while a student here at Madison College. She was treasurer of the Nurses' Club and junior class president last year. Now she is ASMC secretary. As secretary-elect, she attended the student association workshop at Lincoln, Nebraska, last spring.

"Keys to Victory" Is Theme of Fall Week of Prayer

Elder A. V. Wallenkampf, from the College of Medical Evangelists at Loma Linda, California, was the speaker at the fall Week

Some of the keys the speaker held before the students were "Choice," "God's Love—Law," "Resisting Temptation," "Thoughts, the Maker of the Man," "Guarding the Avenues of the Soul," "No Pentecost without Calvary."

Elder Wallenkampf's presentations were well received by the students, because, as one stated, "they went straight to the heart without overappeal to the emotions."

After the daily meetings in the morning with academy students, at the one o'clock chapel hour with college students, and at 7:30 p.m. with the entire Madison family, many availed themselves of the counseling periods with Elder Wallenkampf.

Another feature of the week which students feel contributed to its success was the different plan of having prayer bands precede the night meetings. Students came to the evening service in a wor-

Former Students Write of Their Work on the Amazon

Note: The editorial column is being given over to a letter from former students now in the mission field. Joe Fields is sharing with us news from Nancy (his sister) and Jack Gibbons, who less than a year ago left Madison College for South America to operate a mission launch on the Amazon River. Perhaps many who know Jack and Nancy will respond to their plea for news and write to them. Their address is Central Amazon Mission, Caixa Postal 243, Manaus, Amazonas, Brazil, South America.

Dear Joe:

It was good to get your letter and to learn some of the news around Madison. We do not hear from many people there, and when we do, there is not much news about the college in their letters. You could tell us a little more news from around there if you would. Only when you get as far away from home as we will you appreciate letters full of news too.

It will soon be nine months since we left the States. In one way it seems like a long time. In another it seems like just yesterday. Before we know it we will be on our way back to the States on furlough. We will be happy to see everyone.

Our weather is just a continuous hot summer. The river has gone way down, and many houses which a month and a half ago were floating are now resting on the bottom. In a month or so the rains will start again and then the river will begin coming up.

We planted ourselves a little garden last week, with corn, squash, radishes, and lettuce, and already the squash is coming up. So far we have not found it necessary to eat meat.

In August I made two trips—one by launch into the jungle for eight days, and one by air to Belem for a convention for eight days. I enjoyed both; Nancy and Nancy Lynne remained in Manaus. [See Review and Herald, Nov. 19, p. 20, for Jack's picture.]

Our eight-day launch trip was exciting and eventful. During the day we treated patients physically, and at night we treated souls spiritually. They are sick both ways here. To give you an idea of some of the diseases we treated, read the following list: headache, nausea, vomiting, eye trouble, ear trouble, heart trouble, colds, asthma, pneumonia, pregnancy, stomach ulcers, varicose veins, leg ulcers, yaws, malaria, fever, worms, tooth trouble, urinary trouble, liver trouble, diarrhea, dysentery, boils, lacerations, constipation, arthritis, and countless others.

My launch is undergoing some changes at present. We are adding another one and a half meters to the stern, which will enlarge the kitchen quite a bit. It is being repainted inside and out, and new pitch and calking put in the bottom. A new butane gas stove was purchased for cooking, along with $cr. 50,000 worth of medicines (U.S. $300).

In the jungle we see many monkeys and beautifully colored birds—parrots and all. One night as we were traveling along about midnight we saw two big red flaming eyes in the distance in the water. We knew those eyes to be the eyes of an alligator.

Starch and Stripes

The Sophomore B nursing class and their instructor, Miss Munn, spent Wednesday, November 4, visiting the Senior Citizens Center and Mrs. Dillard's nursing home in Nashville.

Medical and Surgical Nursing students apparently didn't feel well enough prepared for their scheduled test one day last week. As Miss Page, the instructor, came into the classroom, she found, decorating her desk, a wax hand holding a rose (Tom Bates had been experimenting with the paraffin bath). The result—no test.

The Red Cross will entertain half the senior nursing class on November 12 and the other half on November 27 at a dinner at Red Cross headquarters. The Nashville Red Cross Chapter is entertaining all the senior nursing students in the various schools of nursing in the Nashville area. The purpose of the entertainment is to orientate senior nurses to the total activities of the Red Cross.

Mary K. (Nursing, '58) and John (Medical Technology, '57) Donesky, of Palatka, Florida, are the proud parents of Melvin Keith, born October 16 and weighing 8 pounds, 14 ounces.

Laden with gifts and food for the students on pediatric affiliation, Mrs. Zeigler and Mrs. Thomson left for Cincinnati on Thursday, November 5. The purpose of their visit was to attend the Directors Conference on November 6 for the discussion of the pediatric nursing program.

They also met with the students to help them understand their relationship to the hospital, and with the church members in Cincinnati to help them better understand the students' program.

Elaine Ferris, student nurse who has recently transferred to Madison from Washington Missionary College, has just been accepted by the State Board. She is in the Junior B class.

Velma Robinson recently had an emergency appendectomy. We are glad to report that she is now out of the hospital and making a good recovery.

Alumni News

Patsy (Wilson) and Jan Rushing are now living at Lakeland, Georgia, where Jan is the administrator of the Louis Smith Memorial Hospital and Patsy is director of nurses. Patsy graduated from Madison College in 1957.

Kenneth and Kaye (Williams) Schwarz are both working at Grayson Memorial Hospital in Kentucky. Kenneth is a lab and X-ray technician and Kay is doing nursing. Kay is a member of the Class of '57.

Margaret and Herbert Tate are the proud parents of a newly adopted baby boy, Clifton Wayne. Margaret (Class of '57) is an anesthetist and Herbert (Class of '58) is assistant accountant.

Bill and Helene Knight, both graduates of the Class of '48, recently visited the Culpeppers and the Zeiglers here on the campus. The Knights are living in Columbus, Ohio, where Bill is teaching at Ohio University.

Mrs. Howard Nix visited Mrs. A. H. Face and other friends here on the campus during her trip to the homeland. Carrie and her husband Howard, who both received their degrees in nursing in 1945, are located in Dublin, Ireland, where they operate a small clinic.

Velma (Stewart) and Larry Mixon are now living in Spartanburg, South Carolina. Larry is principal of the church school, and Velma is busy taking care of their two small sons. Velma, the daughter of Elder and Mrs. R. E. Stewart, graduated from nursing in 1952, and Larry finished the elementary teacher training course in 1956.

Shot in the Dark

Tired and exhausted as they travel homeward after their visit to Laurelbrook, a few freshmen on the bus were still awake enough to think of the wonderful time they had enjoyed. Others, however, peacefully snored, really snored, almost all the way home.

Mrs. Simmons Visits Campus

Mrs. Marion S. Simmons, former Madison College teacher and now educational consultant for the Southern Union, was a campus visitor and guest speaker on several occasions last week.

For four years Mrs. Simmons headed the Department of Elementary Education here. For many years she has enjoyed a long period of service as teacher, supervisor, dean, and educational superintendent.

Mrs. Simmons was a chapel speaker at both the academy and college chapel services, at the church school, and at an informal meeting of the Teachers of Tomorrow Club held in the cafeteria at supper time on Tuesday evening.

She encouraged young people of all ages to decide early upon their life work and to prepare for their work in a Christian school.

Accompanying Mrs. Simmons was her husband, Mr. James D. Simmons, former credit manager of the sanitarium.

Jack Gibbons—from Col. 1

As we came near him and shined our spotlight on him we could see he was about six feet long. He took one look at us, gave the water a splash with his tail, and dived to the bottom.

Nancy Lynne is really growing. She speaks both English and Portuguese. Someone gave her a little black and white puppy which she loves dearly—in fact too dearly at times, as the dog rebels. We have named the puppy Mercada (market).

We have electricity now and can use all our appliances. Our fan really comes in handy as it is so hot here now.

We are glad we are here, but as we view our task we are humbled and made to feel our dependence on God. We are happy. We are in the best of health and God is good to us.

Write again soon as we love to hear from you.

All our love,
Jack, Nancy, and Nancy Lynne

WGMS Presents Variety of Programs

Roy Steck at the new console control panel

WGMS, the campus "good music station," is now broadcasting about eight hours of meetings and music every Sabbath, and two evening concerts a week in addition to its Friday night and prayer meeting programs. The studios are located in the Music Department in the Assembly Hall.

A new seven-channel mixing console, completed just in time for the Self-supporting Convention, makes it easy to present a variety of programs. This equipment was built by the staff, by which means hundred of dollars were saved.

Manufacturers and others in the electronics industry have been generous in donating equipment. Among these are Acoustic Research, Electra Distributing, Heath Company, International Resistance, James Knights, Peterson Radio, and Triplett.

A big boost was given by the arrival on the campus of an experienced student engineer and announcer, Roy Steck, sophomore from Arlington, California. The staff now includes Professor Francis R. Cossentine, program and station manager; Professor Leslie Morris, engineer and announcer; and Richard Rimmer, engineer and announcer.

Several important and newsworthy developments at the station will be announced soon, according to Professor Cossentine.

Operating on 550 kilocycles, the station is on the air from 8:45 a.m. to the close of MV meeting on Sabbaths, from 8:30 to 9:30 Sunday and Thursday evenings for a good music concert, at 6:45 Tuesday evenings for prayer meeting, and at 7:00 Friday evenings for vespers. The Sabbath morning worship service is transcribed and rebroadcast at 2:00 o'clock Sabbath afternoons, and the Voice of Prophecy program at 3:30 o'clock.

the spines of the fascinated listeners.

Phil Hill, another student leader, comments upon the delicious food that was served at President and Mrs. Sandborn's and the lively game of charades that everyone enjoyed.

Carol Cantrell, leader to the Homer Lynd residence, says that everyone had a wonderful time, although several students became quite confused while playing the game Mental Telepathy, but of course Mr. Lynd was able to straighten everything out.

From the Dickman home comes the rumor that there was quite a gathering of faculty members, including Mr. Keplinger, who drove the students to the homes off campus, and Mr. Cossentine, who led everyone to believe that he eats only three times a year—when he goes to the Walpers, when he goes to the Dickmans, and when he goes on choir trips.

Other faculty members who showed their guests equally good times were Mr. and Mrs. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Duran, Miss Munn and Miss Sellars, Mr. and Mrs. Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Lowder, Mr. and Mrs. Gulley, and Elder and Mrs. Lorenz.

Foreign Students Attend YWCA Vespers

The foreign students of Madison College spent an interesting and profitable evening in the Wightman Chapel of Scarritt College, Nashville, on November 8.

ATS Officers Elected Films Shown

By JIMMIE WHITE

Local ATS officers were presented in chapel on November 9. Charles Tremper is president; Pat Mendenhall, vice president; Hazel Griffin, secretary-treasurer; Jimmie and Billy White, public relations manager and assistant.

After the presentation of officers, the president announced the two films to be shown—"Drug Addict" and "Split Second."

The first film, of special significance to teen-agers, showed the effects of drugs upon the body and the agony endured to "kick," or overcome, the habit.

"Split Second" illustrated how even a very small amount of alcohol slows down body reactions. It takes only a split second to drink alcohol, and it takes only a split second to cause a fatal car accident.

Temperance was featured on World Temperance Day on October 24 at the morning church service. Mr. A. H. Face, church temperance secretary, presented statistics on the consumption of alcohol in the United States and told experiences showing what alcohol does to the home and to the individual.

Students and church members availed themselves of the opportunity at the close of the service to join the American Temperance Society.

Mr. Face is at present connected with the United Tennessee League, a state temperance organization.

Know Your ASMC Officers

By HARRY MONTY GEORGESON

Tom Bates, acting ASMC president, came to Madison College last year from Owensboro, Kentucky, where he graduated from the Davis County High School in 1958.

Tom Bates

Tom, a sophomore nursing student, has held numerous offices in the Wasiota Forum, Student-Teacher Council, and other organizations. He is an enthusiastic basketball player and also enjoys swimming.

The student association constitution stipulates that, if the president of the ASMC resigns, the vice president takes over the presidential duties. When Gordon Roberts resigned the presidency because he dropped classes, Tom complied with this ruling, though he reluctantly accepted the office for the remaining part of the year.

The students feel, however, that Tom has a wealth of experience behind him and will do an excellent job of filling the office.

Let's give our full support to Tom and the other officers of the ASMC and boost school spirit at Madison College.

Seniors, Juniors Announce Officers

Ronald Schmale, medical technology major, has been elected president of the senior class of 1960. Other class officers are Patricia Silver, vice president; Marguerite Roberts, secretary; Laura Mae Slattery, treasurer; Vongoethe Lindsay, pastor. Mr. Harold Keplinger is the sponsor.

The juniors have elected as their president Angel Jimenez, nursing major from Puerto Rico. Mary Gill is vice president; Sylvia Kaldahl, secretary; Margaret Woodruff, treasurer; and Adil Moosa, parliamentarian. Mr. L. L. Dickman is faculty sponsor.

Pathfinders Bring in Food for Thanksgiving Baskets on Halloween Night

Instead of going out for a "trick or treat" on Halloween night, 30 Madison College Trailblazers, the local Pathfinders, and their counselors went out to give treats (in the form of leaflets) and ask for food for those in need.

The evening was a success, for the young people brought in more than 500 cans of food and $17.00 in cash. The money will buy fresh fruit and vegetables, which, with the canned food, will fill Thanksgiving baskets to be distributed a week from now.

Academy Seniors Present Court Scene

The academy senior class brought to the senior Sabbath school a court scene on November 7, challenging each member to study his Sabbath school lesson daily. Acting as judge, Pat Batchelor pronounced the verdict upon the Sabbath school members—guilty of not studying the Sabbath school lesson daily.

Those participating were Carol Bradley, court clerk; Bill Bass, prosecuting attorney; Darrell Ever-soll, defending attorney; Bill Wil-son, chairman of the jury. Those on the jury were Carolyn Combs, Bill Eddings, Marilyn Sandborn, Paul Smetana, Sue Cuthbert, and David White.

The three witnesses were Ruth

Gill, Rowena Felt, and Rosalene McColpin. The testimonies of all three witnesses were based on statistics from the secretary's records, the review of the previous lesson, and a report of work in the mission field.

While the jury was out of the room making its decision, Billy Nickless played a selection on his Hawaiian guitar, "What a Fellow-ship, What a Joy Divine."

The excellent presentation by the seniors made the court scene a success. However, the seniors do not consider it a success unless it has encouraged Sabbath school members to be more diligent in the study of God's word.

Up And Down The Campus

By BERTHA WAY KING

October's blue, bright weather wandered into November, keeping the campus folk in doubt—spring, fall, or bleak winter? . . . The new probies have been too busy with their new duties to worry about the weather. Lily Cabansag, the busiest, perhaps, with her doctor husband, a small, active son, and a charming little daughter, finds time to sew fine seams on her tiny uniforms. . . . Another busy group, Elder Gulley's Evangelism class, is on duty every night during the meetings at the Fatherland Street Church. . . . Have you missed a pleasant telephone voice? The serious illness of Hazel Griffin's mother has called her home for a time. . . . Robert Burks utters a thoughtful note to the editor of the Tennessean, "Confession is good for the soul and true confession can only come from a good soul." . . . The moon beckons high, and serenading boys respond to the music of Joe Fields' and Pino Kinkela's accordions—and smiling girls listen. . . . Swimming is a pastime, too. Fun for some, but maybe not for Robert Florida, who swam the Cumberland River, but didn't make it back on his own. . . . With thankful hearts we see our flag flung straight in a stiff breeze and think of peace on earth and another year fast ending.

Week of Prayer—from p. 1

shipful spirit and in a receptive frame of mind.

On the closing Sabbath one student, Neva Milliman, was baptized by Pastor Anderson. A baptismal class was organized to meet for study a number of weeks before another baptism.

Elder Wallenkampf's warm personality, his friendly manner, and his sympathetic understanding of young people's problems won a place for him in the hearts of the students, as well as the teachers, during the week he was on the campus.

Elder Wallenkampf, now Professor of Religion at the College of Medical Evangelists, is a native of Sweden and came to this country in 1938 to finish his education at Emmanuel Missionary College. Mrs. Wallenkampf, daughters Karen and Mary, and son Victor remained at home while he came east to conduct this Week of Prayer.
