Capacity Crowd Sees Films Saturday Night

Motion pictures were shown to a large crowd Saturday night, January 28, in the College Auditorium. The titles of these films were "Three Little Bruins and a Canoe," "Uncle Henry," and "Reaching from Heaven." The proceeds of this program went to the College View Dorcas Society and the church renovation fund.

"The Three Little Bruins and a Canoe" showed the mischief and comedy three little bears can devise when no one is around to stop them. Their inquisitiveness and mischief can sometimes lead to danger if they are not rescued.

True happiness as found in giving was the thought portrayed in story form in the film "Uncle Henry." Uncle Henry was a kindly old man who thought only of the happiness he could bring to others; therefore, he was happy.

The film "Reaching from Heaven" showed in story form how one church congregation practiced their Christianity. God had to bring near tragedy to one man before the people realized their true duty to others. But when they did realize, all quickly went to work to right the wrong done and to let their light shine.

UNIVERSITY BAND PRESENTS LYCEUM

On Saturday night, January 21, at 7:45 o'clock, the R.O.T.C. Symphonic Band, under the direction of Mr. Donald Lentz, presented the third number of the lyceum series in the College Auditorium.

The personnel of the ninety-five piece band had to be cut in order to occupy the stage of the auditorium. The band was assisted in its program by Mr. Elbrun Cooper, clarinetist, and the Sousaphone choir.

The selections played were as follows:

Local Bible House Starts Ad Contest

If you are a UC student, you may be the one who will walk through the door of your Bible House at the opportune time.

Beginning with the next issue of the CLOCK TOWER, the Nebraska Book and Bible House, 4745 Prescott, next to the Union Bank, will use in each issue, an ad which features a UC student customer. The one chosen for each issue will receive free a fine, cloth-bound book, and a print of his picture to keep as a souvenir.

JEURINK, CLEVELAND RECEIVE MASTER DEGREES

Two Masters Degrees were awarded to Union College instructors in absentia January 28, 1950, by the University of Nebraska. The two so honored were Mrs. Gladys Jeurink and Mr. Robert Cleveland.

Receiving her degrees in Educational Psychology and Zoology, Mrs. Jeurink did her special research work in genetics—commonly called heredity. Her experiments centered around Drosophila Flies, of which she has about eighteen different varieties—all of which are pure-bred. This collection, which includes black, red, white, brown, and orange-eyed flies, may be seen in the laboratory section of the biology department.

Mrs. Jeurink graduated from Union College in 1944. After serving as Dean of Girls at Sheyenne River Academy, she returned to her Alma Mater to become an assistant instructor. At the present time she is holding the position of instructor of biology in the science department.

Robert Cleveland is not satisfied with getting only his Master's Degree in Modern European history. He is now on a part-time study leave while working toward his Ph.D., on which he already has earned some credit.

Having as his adviser Dr. Eugene N. Anderson, who was connected with the state department during the war and who just recently returned from Germany after a trip for the War Department, Mr. Cleveland wrote his thesis on "Minorities' Problems After World War I."

Mr. Cleveland is a graduate of Union College with the Class of 1948. He has served as instructor of history since the second semester of the year '47-'48.

His college career was interrupted by service of two years in the army, but had he gone straight through school without this interruption, he would have received his Master's Degree at the very young age of 21.

Students Give Gymnastic Program at Maplewood, Plainview Academies

Two cars laden with men and materials set out on Friday, January 13, for Maplewood and Plainview academies to demonstrate the abilities and enthusiasm acquired in the Union College gymnastic classes and club. Weather conditions that had delayed the departure by two hours forced half the company to shelter some fifty miles from their destination. The group that proceeded did so by literally feeling their way along through blinding snow which was driven by high velocity winds.

At the program given by the gymnastics group Saturday night, the top incident of the trip was related to the audience by Mr. Carl Watts, the director and sponsor of the team

History Department Shows Marked Progress

In harmony with the action taken by the faculty a year ago, the history department has expanded its offerings substantially in the field of sociology and geography.

For the first time the department is offering a full year's course in sociology. This course, taught by Professor Russell Nelson, is appreciated for its practical lessons in the basic principles of everyday living. The fundamental problems surrounding the individual, the home, and the society are studied that the student may solve his own problems and those of society in which he lives.

Next year it is planned to offer for the first time a course in geography under the direction of Mr. Robert Cleveland, who is minoring in this field in connection with his work toward the degree of doctor of philosophy.

The department is sponsoring an unusually active International Relations Club this year under the presidency of Burnette Tonge, senior history major, with Mr. Robert Cleveland as faculty sponsor. The club is open to all students, and its meetings have an attendance representing many departments in the college. A number of films of outstanding international importance have been shown to large groups. A recent panel discussion on the value of reading current history at the chapel hour provoked spirited campus discussion.

The field of research and writing is not being neglected. Dr. Everett Dick, head of the department, is finishing a volume on the social history of the public lands for publication in the near future. Professor Nelson is gathering materials for a book on certain features of the Civil War.

was given in the dining room of the Continental Cafe for the cadets and their guests. Military police were at the doors to place the guests as they arrived.

The officer of the day 1st Sgt. Glenn Moore, extended a welcome to all present, then introduced Captain Carl Watts. Captain Watts, second in command, presented the queen of the corps, Miss Billie Ann Wright. Miss Wright was made honorary captain of the banquet. Captain Watts pinned the captain's bars on Miss Wright and presented one dozen red roses to her. "Captain" Wright then ordered Sgt. Moore to proceed with the evening's program.

Sgt. Moore introduced Col. Everett Dick, who asked God's blessing on the evening's activities. An appetizing three-course dinner was served in royal style, in a setting of soft organ music.

Col. Dick, the founder of the M.C.C., gave a brief history of the corps, after which he presented the non-commissioned officers with their ratings and warrants. The banquet would not have been complete without a few humorous military stories by the Colonel. Cpl. Jim Bradburn also portrayed the humor of army life in the reading that he gave.

The program was climaxed by the showing of the film, "Tanks A Million," after which Captain Watts gave the final command, "Company, dismissed!"

Miss Kleuser Counsels Ministerial Students

Louise C. Kleuser, associate secretary of the Ministerial Association of Seventh-day Adventists and associate editor of The Ministry Magazine, is on the campus for a five day visit.

Miss Kleuser is on a tour of the denominational colleges to make contacts for the Ministerial Association and to conduct workshops dealing with current problems of the ministry. More candidates for the ministry are in our schools now than ever before according to Miss Kleuser. "Our young people realize the hour has come for a consecrated minister to be a great spiritual leader at a time when the world needs leaders," she said.

During her stay here she will discuss methods of evangelism and ministerial work with various groups and classes. She attempts to bring to the colleges an idea of how our work is progressing and in turn find out how the work of religious education is going in our schools.

Two items of current news were brought to the religion classes on her first day here. Miss Kleuser says that the General Conference is investigating the possibilities of using television as a means of evangelism and that the reports thus far are favorable. The other item is that the Ministerial Pre-Council will precede the General Conference meetings in San Francisco. The Pre-Council will include representatives from all over the world and will compare and discuss methods of evangelism, the Voice of Prophecy's world program, and other vital points of the work.

BIRTH

On January 31, Gale Jay, a 7 pound 6 ounce boy, arrived to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Page. Mr. Page is an instructor in the biology department.

The Sounding Board

A CLOCK TOWER roving reporter asked this question on the campus this week: What do you think could be done to improve courtesy at Union College? He received the following answers:

Jack Harris: "One of the things that perturbs me most occurs when I pass someone on the sidewalk or in the hall and all I see is the top of his head. It is only courteous to look a passerby in the eye and at least smile if you don't desire to speak."

Arthur Hauck: "I believe that the question needs to be reworded to read, 'What can we do to develop true Christian courtesy at Union College?' We need more than just a superficial mode of behavior. We need that which springs spontaneously from within. For 'as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he' The principles given in the Spirit of Prophecy inculcated into our lives will make us courteous Christians."

Bill Lehman: "It is difficult to be discourteous when you have asked the Lord at the beginning of the day to bless your conversation and actions."

Dick Warner: "Individual devotion and Bible study every day will put each in a frame of mind that will make him a humble and courteous Christian."

Royce Williams: "I believe that greater consecration to the Lord in all that we do will automatically raise the standard of courtesy in our school."

Eloise Tyrer: "Courtesy is the by-product of a cheerful, helpful spirit. Let each one of us develop a smiling face and a real desire to help one another and courtesy will abound at Union College."

Everett Fischer: "We should apply the Golden Rule and deny self more often. Thus a more courteous spirit toward one another would be developed."

Eunice Trogdon: "We can never be too courteous. Courtesy can be especially manifest on our campus by a cheerful 'hello' to all we meet on the sidewalks and in the halls whether they be students, faculty members, or visitors."

Marilyn Bemer: "It's the girl's place to speak first to begin a conversation, but why couldn't the gentlemen of the campus help out a little to keep the conversation going?"

Don Woodruff: "Keep bringing it to the attention of the students. I don't think it is ignorance as much as it is carelessness that makes us discourteous."

Strange Bedfellow

Strange bedfellows are sometimes found together in our thinking. This may be just as true of thinking at Union College regarding campus matters as at Washington, D.C., regarding national or world politics. A fact often neglected in both these spheres is that Democracy is not so much made up of leaders doing what the people want to have done to and for them as it is of the people doing for themselves the things that leaders are unable to do for them.

When citizens of the United States demand of their government certain benefits as individual financial assistance, as the legislative regulation of the national economy, or as the extension of police control over broad fields of human activity, they are asking for a force to be exerted that in its operation does not exemplify democracy. In other words, the demand of government upon us regardless of our individual choice is acceptable to democracy-loving people only to the extent that it is recognized as a necessity to achieve what individuals fail to do without it—the care of the aged and poor, the permission of all men to engage in fair and honest business enterprises, the right of all to travel safely on their country's highways or to think, speak, write or worship according to the dictates of the individual conscience.

When, as members of the Union College family, we demand that "the faculty" do something about the problem of conduct in chapel or decry the things done by students on the U.C. campus with insinuation that the preacher, the teacher, or the "peanut gallery" should or ought to do something about it, we are asking for a limitation of true democracy.

Individual liberties are procurable only on the acceptance of individual responsibility. Some of us are unhappy about the amount of regimentation seemingly necessary in our college community life. We purpose here that those unhappy accept the individual responsibility themselves and so help to minimize the necessity for the regulations. Others are unhappy that not enough regulation is achieved. We propose here that those accept individual responsibility lest even they find themselves unhappy one day with regulations still others have thought needful.

Past and Future

Those fatal days are past. No more worries or cares! At least until the end of next semester when we once again shall have the opportunity to write our accumulated knowledge on the finals. What a word, it's so final. There seems to be but one consolation, to be mentioned later.

The general opinion of many is, "Don't let your studies interfere with your college education." What a philosophy, it sounds wonderful, but is it? Really it is much easier to procrastinate and have a few extra hours leisure for play or sleep, but college is in reality not the lazy man's life! We're here to learn how to live, study, work, and play. If we fail to find time for all of these we have lost the benefits that may be ours.

As stated previously there is but one consolation. There are eighteen weeks stretching before us in which to accumulate knowledge and build for ourselves a "wonderful working philosophy"—one that will work for us in all phases of life and will yield to us the necessary benefits to live happily and profitably.

GYMNASTIC TOUR

with Jim Bradburn on the receiving end. The incident follows: In the hotel where Mr. Watts and his group sought refuge from the storm, Jim, the company's clown, was leading the race to retirement. The drowsy speedster folded his trousers carefully over a hanger and stumbled toward the closet. He opened the door and stepped into the main corridor just off the hotel lobby, clad in... Well, he was clad.

Mr. Watts, Frank Domijan, and Jim Stokos provided the outstanding exhibitions of skill and daring on the trampoline. Watts thrilled the audience with his "neck-breaker" in which he dives head first toward the trampoline, snapping into a back drop at the fraction of a second that his head touches the canvas. Domijan and Stokos worked together to execute some very difficult dual precision exercises on the trampoline. Watts, Domijan, and Nickoli Nelson performed on the mats, much to the pleasure of the spectators. Dick Anderson took the long distance diving honors, when he dived over twelve men. The weight-lifting portion of the program featured Bob Raitz, who was handicapped in taking the "press-up" honors by a sprained shoulder. Frank Domijan and Bob Beldin tied in the "clean-and-jerk" lift. They raised 200 pounds each. Harold Vasenius and Ted Martin, who were the flag bearers as the program opened, served as foundation men in pyramids that were three men high. Vince Williams was the top man in all the three-man-high work. Charlie Barr assisted in the long distance diving and worked with Jim Bradburn, the clown.

The program was closed by the clown's circling the room with "The End" sign hanging from his back as Beldin played "Good-night, Ladies" on a trumpet while standing on his head.

MISS EDITH TAN

A ready smile, a warm greeting, a sensitive nature, and understanding sympathy marked the character of Miss Edith Tan, class of '49, who died in New York City recently. Her mother, who had flown from Hong Kong, Gilbert, her brother, and an aunt were by her bedside when she died.

Elder W. A. Fagal, pastor of the Washington Avenue Church in New York City, in a letter to Mrs. Woods, described the last few hours of Edith's life in the following manner: "The whole scene with her life slowly ebbing away and the mother sitting in utter dejection after having traveled half way around the world to be with her daughter was one that could not help but tear one's heartstrings greatly."

Union College pays tribute to one of her own—Edith Tan.

Watson, Carlson Give Recital in Chapel

The music department presented Mr. Charles Watson and Mr. Don Carlson in a recital at the chapel periods on January 30 and 31.

Mr. Watson's repertoire included such composers as Shostakovich whose "Prelude in E Flat Minor" portrays, to some extent, the frustration of the modern Russian mind, and Chopin whose "Berceuse" Mr. Watson reproduced with all its lilt-ling qualities.

Don Carlson received an enthusiastic ovation for his delightful presentation of "Three for Jack," which depicted the life of a vagabond sailor.

Their selections included the following:

Silent Worship.....	Handel
Pale Moon.....	Logan
Hills of Home.....	Fox
	Don Carlson
Le Coucou.....	Daquin
Berceuse.....	Chopin
	Charles Watson
Donzelle, fugitte.....	Cavalli

Prelude, E Flat Minor.....	Shostakovich
Caprice Espagnol.....	Mozzkovski

There seems to be much misunderstanding as to the meaning of individual responsibility. Some conceive it as their duty to report to some authority whose business it is to care for such things. Some think their responsibility discharged in the reporting to whichever neighbor or acquaintance offers an ear. Some seem to think individual responsibility has ceased with the democratic election of public officials to the various duties of government. Others seem to feel that there is no such thing as individual responsibility beyond that of "every man for himself."

We suspect that all these interpretations and likely some others are exemplified repeatedly on the Union College campus as well as they are in public or community life about us. For this reason we believe that every member of our campus family would profit by frequent reading of the words found in three Bible passages.

Matthew 7:12 is the "Golden Rule." If I have come to Union College hoping to find a Christian atmosphere and help from others in bringing my own character into harmony with Christian principles, then I must begin by striving to be for others here the kind of person I want them to be for me. I must not simply lean upon them.

Matthew 18:15-17 (more tersely put in Luke 17:3, 4) tells us to go to an offender personally ourselves first in an effort to bring him to recognize his fault and reform. Perhaps even we who go to the offender will often find a happy understanding with the one who seemed to offend. We are sure this rule would prove the gaining of a friend.

Then lest we throw away all responsibility let every Christian read Romans 13:5 and himself be subject to those whose duty it is to keep order or rule.

The Outside Reading Hour

Between the eye and the daylight
When the old moon coldly lowers,
Comes the strain on the day's occupation
Known as outside reading hours.

I hear in the office above me
The shuffle of teachers' feet,
The sound of a drawer that is opened
And voices soft and "sweet."

From my study I see in the twilight
Descending the broad hall stair
That monster, outside reading,
And his master standing there.

A whisper, and then a silence,
Yet I know by their fiery eyes
They are plotting and planning together
To take me by surprise.

A sudden rush from the stairway
A sudden raid from the hall
By a back door left unguarded
They enter the castle hall.

They lash at me from the book shelf
And snatch at my falling hair.
I'd try to escape but they'd down me,
They seem to be everywhere.

They stand off and scare me with hisses
Their lashes about me entwined;
Till I wish I were over in Bingen
In that mouse tower on the Rhine.

I know old glassy eyed monster
Now that you've crashed our hall
As do all the students in Union
That you're a match for us all.

You have us fast in your clutches
And will not let us depart
But don't put us down in that dungeon!
Mr. Monster, have a heart!

Don't keep us here forever
Not for ever and a day
I want to catch up on my reading
Before I moulder away.

Union College sends its sympathy to Dr. Carrie Robbins and her daughter in their bereavement.

KAMPUS KLUBS

NURSING CLUB

The Shining Lights had an active organization during the first semester, but during the second semester with the enlarged membership due to the arrival of the new members from the Boulder Division, they promise to have a more active club yet. They plan for the girls from Boulder to have a very active part in the club because they have had experience and can tell the new girls "the tricks of the trade."

Among the social activities they are planning is a picnic party in the spring, which will be a lot of fun. They are also planning a banquet in the not-too-distant future.

SIGMA IOTA KAPPA

During a recent club meeting, the men of South Hall elected new officers for the second semester. Those elected to offices were:

- President.....Lloyd Cleveland
 - Vice-president.....Charles Read
 - Sec.-treas.....Keith Wiseman
 - Asst. sec.-treas.....Frank Akamine
- The officers then met and appointed Jim Bradburn and Bob Bel-din to be club heralds.

On December 4 the Photo Art Club and members of the art classes spent a day in Omaha. The first place they visited was the WOW-TV station. This is the largest filming studio in the United States. The visitors went through and saw all the studios, labs, workrooms, and the receiving station.

The second stop was the Joslyn Memorial Art Museum. Some of the different displays were: "Art for Advertising" by the Associated Artists of Omaha; Omaha Midwest Show of Photography; 17th and 18th Century French metal work; and a display of stained glass windows. In the auditorium films were shown on New Hampshire, New Mexico, and Wyoming.

Several weeks before this the club went to Bud Eden's photo studio to see an exhibition of the "Dye Transfer Process." (All colors including silver and gold are made from blue, red and yellow.) Mr. Eden also exhibited his photo equipment and work done in the studio.

New officers for the second semester were elected during a recent meeting. Those elected were:

- President.....Arthur Huff
- Vice-president.....Heidi Risch
- Sec.-treas.....Mrs. Vuloff

KAPPA THETA

The new club officers of Kappa Theta met Thursday evening, January 27, 1950, and made plans for the first club meeting of the new semester. The meeting was held under the leadership of Teddy O'Blander, new Kappa Theta president.

President O'Blander's assistant for the new year is Eunice Grant. Alta Basham is the secretary-treasurer with Betty Sherman as her assistant. La Verne Vietz chosen as chorister and Lois Bookhardt as pianist will plan the music for the club. Kay Dixon was elected club cultural secretary.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

At the January meeting of the Home Economics Club, Mrs. Irene Ling of Kulangsu, Amoy, China, who is now a student at Union College, was the guest speaker. She talked on Chinese customs and the many changes that have been made in it during the past hundred years. She used pictures to illustrate the different periods of costume change.

A committee of three members was chosen to plan the program for February. They are Carol Carlson, Polly Roethel, and Marchita Valentine. The plan of choosing two new members for the program committee at each meeting will be followed throughout the remainder of the school year.

At the close of the program, refreshments of pumpkin cake and punch were served.

MU EPSILON DELTA

On the night of January 21, President John Dowswell called a short business meeting which preceded the program. At that time the club voted to invite the members of the Pre-nursing Club to attend the annual Pre-med banquet to be held later in the term.

Dr. Samuel Thurstein, from the faculty of Creighton University and also a surgeon at St. Elizabeth's hospital, presented the lecture to the star members of Mu Epsilon Delta and the pre-nurses. An added attraction was two reels of film that John Dowswell and Leo Hartman had taken of a Caesarian section performed by Dr. Thurstein two months previously. The parents of the baby, whose delivery was shown, and their little boy were present at the meeting.

AGRICULTURE CLUB

The progress and prosperity of our rural economical well-being determines the economical condition of our nation. This was the general thought Dr. Mitchell, head of the Rural Economics Department of the University of Nebraska, brought to those present at the Ag Club, Tuesday, January 10.

Dr. Mitchell then explained some of the possibilities through which this economical standing might be maintained. "No one of the farm plans can answer all of the questions or prove entirely satisfactory," said Dr. Mitchell, "but it will take a combination of the good points of several plans to develop a satisfactory solution." As yet, no entirely satisfactory solution has been developed. As time passes, the farm bills must change, and they usually undertake some changes each year.

Dr. Mitchell concluded with the thought that not until the voters learn to read and understand the bills and know what their congressmen uphold, will the farm plans become satisfactory to those it affects. Therefore, it is our duty as voters to understand these plans in order to protect our economical well-being.

SPEECH CLUB

On December 16, the Speech Club met for the purpose of organization and election of officers. Teddy O'Blander was elected president; Dalrie Berg, vice-president; and Virginia Reynolds, secretary-treasurer. The purpose of the club is the study of program planning and directing. Mr. Virgil Logan is the club sponsor.

At the second meeting on January 13, a dialogue was presented by Don Carlson and Bill Shrake. The rest of the program consisted of a rehearsal of the scene to be presented at an M.V. meeting the second week in February.

For the club meeting on February 10, a group is working on a demonstration of how to give programs where there is no stage or platform available.

With a membership of thirty-five persons, the Speech Club shows promise of being one of the most active organizations on the campus.

The I.R.C. is still planning on a trip to Wichita, Kansas, in March to represent this chapter of the club in a national convention there.

90 Men on 11 Teams Show Enthusiasm in Basketball Tourney

As the basketball season approaches the mid-way stripe, the point standings keep rising and the tournament goes on. At the present time there are five teams tied for second place and three for third. So far in the season, only one team has been unbeaten. The 49'ers, though having their hardest games to play, are making a strong bid for the championship. The Nuggets, Spartans, Royal Knights, and Hornets, close on the trail of the first place 49'ers, are putting forth a lot of effort to remain in the race. This might be realized by witnessing the thrilling exhibitions of precision playing. Let us now look at the individual team ratings and follow some of the recent games.
