JUNIORS ENTERTAIN SENIORS AT CORNHUSKER HOTEL

ELDER BURROUGHS OUTLINES PLANS FOR BIG WEEK

Elder Charles Burroughs, home missionary secretary of the Central Union Conference, spoke to the student body at the chapel hour, Wednesday, April 24, on the plan for the Big Week this year.

"Those whom we love we obey," he said in his opening remarks. "If we love the Lord and His work we will do all in our power to carry the gospel unto all the world."

He continued, "No individual can tell how far the gospel has ever been preached. Our books have gone far and wide, and our institutions are now scattered all over the world. Our work is now carried on in 211 mission stations, 279 languages, 56 publishing houses, 63 sanitariums and 1,600 denominational schools."

The proceeds of the Big Week are divided among these various needy institutions.

At the close of the meeting a call was made for students to go and sell these books to the people in the surrounding towns. About seventy-five students responded, pledging to sell over one hundred sets of books and to give $20 in cash. Arrangements for grouping and instruction are under the direction of Francis Gregerson, Blanche Gilbert, and Emil Fick.

Young Women Will Present "Biblical Women"

The young women of North Hall are now working on the program they will give in the chapel Saturday night, May 11. The program is religious in nature, giving scenes and musical selections on Biblical women.

Every young woman in North Hall has some definite part in the presentation.

The principal characters have been selected and are as follows:

Sarah.....Emma Lou Vogel
Rebecca.....Verd Nell Rice
Jochebed.....Lucille Flyger
Miriam.....(a little girl)

Thelma Christpens
Miriam.....(a woman) Elinore Hahn
Egyptian Princess.....Katherine Lutz
Deborah.....Adeline Farnsworth
Naomi.....Ellen Vogel
Ruth.....Violet Rasmussen
Orpha.....Doris Lee Ruddle
Esther.....Dorothy McCormack
Mary.....Anna Johnston
Widow of Nain.....Helen Wells
Martha.....Marian Christmann
Dorcas.....Mildred Rhoads

Committees on arrangements, posters, and general publicity are as follows: Arrangements: Kathryn Bunnell, Dorothy McCormack, Verd Nell Rice, Marian Christmann; posters: Lucille Moore, Myrtle Swisher, and Florence Moser; music: Clara Culver and Mary Ruth Miller; publicity: Blanche Gilbert, Nellie Wetzel, Jane Russell, Marie Toews, Pearl Hartwell, and Phylura Nagel. The readers for the evening will be Elsie Orner, Helen Hunter, and Kathryn Bunnell.

Summer School Term Begins May 28

Plans for summer school have been completed and already letters are coming in from teachers and others interested in summer courses. Prof. H. U. Stevens is in charge of the summer school, which begins May 28, and continues four weeks. The second term will begin June 24 and last eight weeks.

Professors H. U. Stevens, H. K. Schilling, E. B. Ogden, G. C. Jorgensen, D. G. Hiltz, Ruby McGee, Mrs. H. U. Stevens, Irene Couch, Pearl L. Rees, Ruby Lea, of Union College, and Caroline Hopkins, from La Sierra, California, will teach. Mrs. Minnie Cook will serve as matron.

Classes in Synthetic Bible, Epistles, Principles of Education, Teaching Process, School Management, Psychology, Contemporary Education, Review of common branches of education, Manual Arts, Freshman Rhetoric, English Literature, Second Semester Spanish, Algebra, Trigonometry, Organic Chemistry, Physiology, and Physics will be offered.

ANNUAL LAUNDRY PICNIC HELD AT WEEPING WATER

The laundry folks were very happy Sunday morning, April 28, when their alarm clocks awakened them to a nice, bright, clear day, for they knew that at 10:45 they would leave the campus in trucks bound for Weeping Water where they would celebrate a long-planned picnic.

As soon as the group reached the grounds a "Treasure Hunt" began, in which all took part. A few games were played before the lunch, which consisted of sandwiches, sweet pickles, potato salad, baked beans, ice-cream and cookies, was served.

The afternoon program consisted of games such as "nimble peg", baseball, flying dutchman, etc. Several of the groups went on short hikes of exploration.

Captains for the planning and direction of the games were A. K. Phillips, Fred Sofsky, Doris Miller, Ada Townsend, Clara Culver and Leon Baker.

Professor and Mrs. G. W. Habenschicht, Professor and Mrs. G. C. Jorgensen, and Miss Ruby McGee acted as chaperons.

STUDENTS RECEIVE APPOINTMENTS

Miss Wilma McCarty, student of Union College, has accepted a position as head of the commercial department in the Canadian Junior College at Lacombe, Alberta, Canada.

This is Miss McCarty's first year at Union. She has taken her previous college work in different places in Alberta.

Miss Mary Ruth Miller, member of the senior class of '29, has accepted a position in the English department of the Pilger, Nebr., high school.

Miss Miller taught music two years in the Hutchinson Seminary, Hutchinson, Minn., and one year at Plainview Academy, Redfield, S. Dak. Miss Miller has taken practically all of her college work at Union. During the last two years she has been assistant librarian, and the Union College orchestra accompanist.

Lessie Culppepper, member of the graduating class of '29, has accepted the position of preceptress at the Maplewood Academy at Hutchinson, Minn.

Miss Culppepper was graduated from Southwestern Junior College, Keene, Texas, in 1925. She spent two years teaching in the North Texas Conference before coming to Union College, where she has spent her junior and senior years.

Miss Culppepper, while connected with the college, has been a reader in the department of Education, has served on the North Hall House Committee and on the Clock Tower board, and was assistant librarian during the summer of 1928.

SENIORS FOLLOW ARROWS TO SCENE OF ENTERTAINMENT

The single men of the Senior class entertained the rest of the class at an informal party held at Calvert Place Wednesday afternoon, April 24.

The novel invitations, which had caused much conjecture, instructed the guests to meet on the North Hall porch and follow a series of green and white arrows which led by a round-about way to the scene of the entertainment.

A number of lively games and contests occupied the time. The class colors of ivory, emerald and gold were carried out in the delicious refreshments.

Barbara Chase Presents Gift to North Hall

A beautiful, hand-painted, black satin wall design was presented to North Hall home last week by Miss Barbara Chase, a former North Hall girl, and a graduate of Union College, who is spending the winter in College View.

The piece was made so that it can be used for a pillow, table cover, or wall hanging. Miss Rees chose to use it as a wall hanging as she says she has been wanting one for the lobby for some time. The North Hall young women wish to express their appreciation of this lovely gift, which will add beauty to the home.

Miss Chase has made several gifts to North Hall. She painted the motto, "Others," and the aim, "King's Daughters all Glorious Within," which hang in the worship room; and the Bible text Phil. 4:8 which is in the lobby.

MISS PHILMON IS ENTERTAINED AT McWILLIAMS HOME

Miss Estelle Keihnhoff, Mrs. D. Glenn Hiltz, and Mrs. Chas. McWilliams entertained informally Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. McWilliams, honoring Miss Rochelle Philmon, whose marriage to Mr. Chas. Kilgore, of South Lancaster, Mass., will take place on May 27.

The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the house decorations of peach and apple blossoms, and in the refreshments, which consisted of pink and white ice cream, moulded in the shape of a wedding slipper and individual white cakes decorated with the pink wedding slipper. Several bridal games were also played, Mrs. Verne Thompson and Mrs. G. A. Williams winning the first prizes in the contests. One of the interesting events of the afternoon was a history of the bride-to-be's wedding journey written by the twenty-four guests.

Toward the close of the hour, a miniature United States airplane flew into the room. The guest of honor was asked to unload the plane and found that its cargo consisted of linen gifts showered upon her by the guests.

JUNIOR PRESIDENT GIVES SENIORS HEARTY WELCOME

Orchestra Furnishes Music

The class of '30 entertained the class of '29 at a banquet at the Hotel Cornhusker, Sunday evening, April 28, at 7:30 o'clock. Busses called for the party at North Hall promptly at 7 o'clock, and took them to the Hotel Cornhusker, where they were received and taken to the Lancaster private dining room where the banquet was held.

Plates were laid for forty-eight guests. The senior colors were carried out in the scheme of decoration. The tables were decorated with vases of Ophelia roses and the place cards were nasturtiums in the senior colors. A six-piece orchestra under the direction of Adrian Lauritzen furnished music although they were forced to compete with the tuneful canary birds who vied with one another as well as with the orchestra.

Francis Gregerson, president of the class of '30, was toastmaster. He started the program by offering a welcome to the senior guests. Ray Fowler, president of the class of '29, responded in behalf of the seniors. Toasts were then offered by Willard Wentland, and Ellen Vogel. After the orchestra had furnished another selection the tables were turned and the surprise of the evening was perpetrated when Mr. Gregerson called upon three seniors, Wesley Andress, Dorothy McCormack, and Winslow Randall for extemporaneous speeches. Topics were assigned also, the first being one on "Nails," the second on "Clothes pins" and the third on "The Night I Hated to Go Home."

As the party left the dining room each senior lady was allowed to select one of the beautiful rose-buds that decorated the tables. Busses were waiting to take the group "back to old Union again" and all the seniors were willing to vote that the class of '30 had succeeded in staging something not only unique, but really successful in the way of a junior-senior banquet.

Gospel Meetings in Lincoln Close

The Gospel Workers Corps, who, under the direction of Elder A. J. Meiklejohn, have been holding a gospel effort at 1439 O street, closed their series of meeting Wednesday night April 24, with a talk given by Reuben Johnson.

The meetings, which began March 2 with a sermon by Emil Fick, have been held nightly with the exception of Monday nights. Over fifty sermons have been presented. Twenty-five individuals have become deeply interested.

The Homiletics class contributed by far the greatest number of sermons. Members of this class are Willard Wentland, Harold Andrus, M. H. Jensen and Reuben Johnson.

The music was under the direction of Walter Howe, assisted by David Hagele and Clifford Kneeland.

Sabbath School Program Is Given By Juniors

The Sabbath school program Sabbath morning, April 27, was given by the Union College Junior class. Francis Gregerson, assistant superintendent of the school and president of the Junior class made a few remarks in regard to the school in general, and introduced Reuben Johnson as the temporary superintendent. Wendell Wolfe offered prayer.

Merrill Smith conducted the review in a unique way. He said "It usually is embarrassing for both the reviewer and the individual one questioned if he doesn't know the answer asked him." He then called the number of the chapel seats at random, stating that in that way it was fair for both.

A short dialogue was given by Fae Cowin and Ella Johnson. The scene took place in India. Miss Johnson and Miss Cowin were nurses in charge of the entire work. Calls were coming daily for urgent distant cases, but no one was there to go. Estel Starr, representing a delegate from a distant province, pleaded earnestly for a doctor but the pitiful call had to be declined. Miss Cowin made an earnest appeal in behalf of India and its needs, urging the members of Union College Sabbath school to do their part in sending offerings this quarter to her needy field.

Misses Elsie Mohr and Irene Anderson sang a duet and Marie Toews read the report of the previous Sabbath. She compared the members of the Sabbath school who fail to take advantage of its opportunities to a man with an automobile who does not make use of it and to a boy with an apple who refuses to eat it.

Miss Elsie Mohr was chorister and Margaret Bowers was pianist.

THE OLD CLOCK TOWER

James Rodney, a resident of College View, sends his appreciation of the Clock Tower in form of a poem.

*I like it for the memories dear,
Of those who went and left it here,
A token of respect and love
Who taught them of the One above.*

*The moments fly! Oh, don't delay
Work fast, for yet awhile 'tis day,
And night comes soon when work is done,
Question you and I, how many souls are won?*

*Oh, youth who're taught old Union's ways,
Take heed, be careless not, it pays—
These precious moments not to waste,
For time is short we need to haste.*

*I love thee much, the old tower clock
Thou knowledge teach that needs no lock
And precious moments lost would be
But for thy warning face I see.*

NATURE IS REVELATION OF GOD

*"For, lo, the winter is past;
The rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of birds is come,*

*And the voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land;
The fig tree ripeneth her green figs,
And the vines are in blossom;
They give forth their fragrance."*

—Songs of Solomon 2:11-13.
"Everybody loves the spring-time," said Elder Meiklejohn, Friday evening at the student vesper service. Elder Meiklejohn said that it was his purpose to show "how God has revealed Himself in nature, and, God's relationship to nature."

"Just as the Bible is a revelation of God, so is nature another revelation of God. As we see the stars shining overhead, we see the handwriting of God. And people have been led to God by this handwriting. But the subject is far deeper than I am able to penetrate. God is the Upholder of all things. No matter what we study, whether botany, physiology, physics, or chemistry, we are studying the laws of God; and there is a real value in studying things like that. We look at the watch and exclaim 'What a wonderful skill that required!' But think what comparison that has to the flower of the fruit. The scientist is led after thoughtful and deep study in the things of nature to cry out, 'Oh, God, I think thy thoughts after thee!'

"Sometimes we do not make God great enough, or exalted enough. We make Him merely a great man. He says 'Heaven is my throne and the earth is my footstool.' The Lord does not dwell in temples, but everywhere; that is His presence is everywhere.

PROFESSIONAL SENIORS

APPEAR IN CHAPEL

Monday morning at chapel time everyone was happily surprised to see Dean Wilcox step on the platform. He, after a few brief remarks concerning the Professional class, introduced them by departments.

The first and largest department was represented by the following graduates: Eddie Barr, Eva Parker, Mabel Krauss, Irma Watt, Myrtle Long, Lera Soland, Leonard Beaman, Onetta Harvey and Anne Devnich.

The next group was small, having only two members, Norman Brethouwer and George M. Campbell who represented the pre-medics. From the department of music one is graduating, Mrs. L. E. Niermeyer.

In this class there is a graduate from a department which has never been represented before. The Gospel Workers' graduate, M. H. Jensen, is the first to complete this course.

To the tune of "left, right, left, right" and the ringing of the bell the future "schoolma'ms" entered, Thelma Chrispens and Lura Wilburn.

Last, came the one representative of the Home Economics department, Juanita Huffman. After due applause had been given, the class sang an appropriate song. Their emblems, gold and purple were displayed in the form of little caps, which were worn by the members and the sponsor.

APPRECIATION PROGRAM GIVEN IN SUNSHINE BAND

The work of the Sunshine Band at the Tabitha home was clearly presented last Friday evening in the band meeting. Miss Elmore Hahn, the leader of the group that goes to Tabitha, announced the program.

Clara Culver rendered a vocal selection, after which a little ten-year old girl (Mabel Krauss) told how she liked to hear the stories the big girls told them. Two little girls from the Primary Division of the Sabbath school sang a motion song. Uncle Alfred (Alfred Watt) an old man told of his wayward ways in his youth, how he happened to be in the Tabitha home, and how he enjoyed the Sunshine Band meetings. Yet he said that sometimes their message made him sad.

After another children's song had been sung by the same little girls, Jeannette McKibben described the Tabitha home and told some of her experiences in visiting there.

DEAN WILCOX CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Dean Wilcox surprised the young men of South Hall Monday evening by celebrating his birthday in his usual way. "I believe it is more blessed to give than to receive," he said.

He served refreshments to the boys after which they requested a speech. The dean responded by saying, "I was hoping someone would ask me, because I have one all planned out. I am twenty-nine years old today, and I think I have lived in these years as much as Methuselah did his first 500. So you see I'm really old.

"I want to tell you then how to grow old gracefully. This can not be done. Did you ever see an old 30-year horse get frisky and kick up his heels with the colts? It was anything but graceful. That's true with a man.

"Nature gives young people grace, old people brains. So if you want to grow old you've got to give up your grace in exchange for brains. Remember you can't grow old gracefully with brains.

My Experience In Judging "Watchman" Prize Articles

MABLE A. HINKHOUSE '25

I felt highly honored about a month ago when I was informed that I would be one of the three judges in the Watchman prize-article contest. My mind wandered back to the year 1925 when I was a senior in Union College, taking the journalism course. I remembered how Miss Philmon had told us of this opportunity, and gave us the assignment of writing upon one of the three subjects—The Sabbath, The Nature of Man, or The Second Coming of Christ. I chose to write on The Sabbath, but somehow the judges failed to recognize my article as a prize-winner.

Now I was judging instead of being judged. I felt it to be a privilege, but I also knew that it would be no small task, as I took the ninety-six articles, varying in length from three to eleven pages each. However, I waded bravely through the mass of essays and stories. Some were dry; some were not. Some were timely; some were time-worn. Some showed literary worth and strength; others lacked scholarship and showed weakness. Some gave evidence of originality; others seemed of the cut-and-dried variety. Some held the attention; others were dull and monotonous.

I tried to bear my instructions in mind all the time I was reading. Does the article come within the bounds of one of the three subjects? Does it pick out a phase of that subject and stick to it? Does it leave an impression of the truth and teach the doctrine, or is it wearisome with texts and arguments. Does it display spiritual appeal or intellectual logic? Is it persuasive or pedantic? Would the article be suitable for outsiders or insiders? Do I find glaring inaccuracies of fact and thought, bad grammar, poor construction, faulty punctuation, misspelled words?

Although I had been cautioned not to let the name of the writer influence my decisions, I could not help but have a passing interest in the articles from the pens of Union students. Try as hard as I might, however, I could not find one from there to recommend in the advent and immortality groups.

I read nearly all of the Sabbath articles before I found one which at all seemed praiseworthy. Near the last I came to one whose title lured me—"The Lady Over the Hedge." The article proved to be as gripping and interesting as its title. I had not read far until I said to myself, "Here is a winner." Imagine my joy when I found that it was written by a student of Union. Anxiously I applied the three main tests:

Is it first, last, and throughout a Sabbath article?
Does it persuade, rather than preach?
Is it adapted to Watchman readers?
To each question I could answer emphatically "Yes." To me the manuscript stood out prominently above all the rest.

After I had finished reading all of the articles, I waited impatiently for the time to come when all the judges would decide. This being my first experience, I was very anxious to know how my decisions would compare with those of the others. At last I was called in to the editor's office. There was an air of expectancy about. One of the judges made the remark that she was almost as excited as if she had written an article herself.

First we considered the advent articles. We had the widest diversity of opinion on this subject. After a little discussion and deliberation, we laid aside the six most promising articles—one for each prize and three for honorable mention. None of these were written by Union students. Next we took up the articles on immortality. Here we were more quickly to agree. Again Union was not represented.

In the last group—The Sabbath—we were glad when we learned that our votes for first prize all went to the same person—Helen Wells. I am happy that this honor could go to my Alma Mater.

After the results had been summed up we found that a first prize had been awarded to each of three colleges: Union College, Helen Wells; Emmanuel Missionary College, Kenneth McElmurry. Only the first-prize articles will be published in the Watchman Magazine. The winners will each receive a prize of four full-leather books. I was pleased to see Mildred Rhoads receive honorable mention in the Sabbath group.

It's queer how little things, just little things, will sometimes influence a judge. Of course the intrinsic value of a manuscript is what weighs the most and puts it in its general class. But when one has two or three so near the same value that it is hard to decide on one, the one that is the nearest perfect in all things is bound to come to the top. For the benefit of those who have written and the would-be writers as well, let me pass on some memoranda on little things that were disregarded in this contest.

- 1 Mechanical perfection. Manuscripts should be neatly typed on standard size paper. If the sheets look untidy with erasures, strike-overs, and hand-written corrections, it will hinder your chance. Number each sheet. Leave liberal margins at top and sides of each sheet. If you fasten the sheets at the top with three small clamps instead of the ordinary paper clip, it will make it more convenient for the reader to leaf through the pages.
- 2 Be sure to put your name, your address, your school, and the approximate number of words at the top of page 1.
- 3 Do not make your article extremely short or extremely long. Vary little from the suggested bounds—1,500 to 1,800 words.
- 4 Be sure of your spelling. If you write "for instants" instead of "for instance," you may be sure a proofreader will rule you out.
- 5 Make the reader wonder what it's all about by giving the article an attractive, suggestive title. However, make the title true. One writer named his article "The Italian Question," instead of "The Roman Question."

In addition to the "little things" and other hints given, I would list three more items to observe in order to avoid Horrible Mention.

- 1 Don't write as if trying to fill up space—as if merely covering an assignment, or reciting a lesson. Select a telling theme and put life into it and animation. Each manuscript should have an appealing introduction and a strong conclusion. Especially is the introduction important. If the one reading does not have his attention caught by the opening lines, he will probably pass on to another. The same is true, to a certain extent, of the judges.
- 2 Select one phase of a subject and develop it in good proportion. Don't ramble all over the universe.
- 3 If you are writing a story, have a well-developed plot. Make the story true to life. Don't get your characters converted too easily.

Hikes and Parties

The Academy students of Union College hiked to Antelope Park early Sunday morning, April 28. The time was spent in playing games and preparing and eating breakfast.

Miss Ruby McGee and Professor and Mrs. Rollin Nesmith were the chaperons.

"It's an ideal morning for our hike," said one of the Iowa students as the group left the campus Sunday morning at 6:30 for a hike to Tuttle's grove, two miles south of College View.

The chaperons were Miss Minnie Olson, Professor G. W. Habenicht and Dean Wilcox.

Miss Ada Townsend was hostess at a party given in the basement of North Hall Saturday night. Games were played and refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served. Those present were Misses Elinore Hahn, Ada Townsend, Ella Johnson, Fae Cowin, Myrtle Johnson, Clara Culver, Joyce Peterson, Pearl Rees and Messrs. Lars Christensen, Carl Moyers, Clarence Johnson, Harry Carscallen, Leon Baker, Reuben Johnson, and Jake Siebenlist.

A UNION REUNION HELD IN POONA, INDIA

The Biennial Council of missionaries, representing all departments of the work in the Southern Asia Division, was held at Poona from February 20 to March 7. Brethren Montgomery and Town of the General Conference, presented a great message on the subject of "Evangelism and Soul Winning." We feel that we are at the dawn of a greater and a better day for our work in this field. The copious showers of blessings from above, the powerful presentations from the pulpit, the helpful discussions from the floor and the plans that were adopted, will without a doubt, bear a rich fruitage in the very near future.

It was felt that the occasion presented a unique opportunity for former students of our DEAR OLD UNION to get together and have a reunion and send back a message of hope and cheer to our Alma Mater in the homeland. Accordingly, Elder J. S. James sounded the gathering call. We are sending a picture of the sixteen Unionites, who were present at the meeting. As the readers of the CLOCK TOWER may not be acquainted with all of the Unionites of India, I will mention their names and the years that they were in attendance: Elder and Mrs. J. S. James 1896-1901

Dr. H C. Menkel 1905-1907
 Miss L. C. Schultz 1905-1907
 Mrs. I. F. Blue 1905-1908
 Elder I. F. Blue 1905-1910
 Elder and Mrs. M. Meleen 1909-1910
 Elder A. G. Youngberg 1913-1915
 Elder J. Phillips 1914-1920
 Elder and Mrs. E. Willmot 1918-1923
 Elder and Mrs. M. Oss 1919-1922
 Mr and Mrs. A. E. Rawson 1924-1926
 The following Unionites, who are in India serving but were not here are: Mrs. J. Phillips, nee Mariam Heywood, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Nelson, and Elder and Mrs. O. H. Shrewsbury.

The following Tuesday evening we surrounded a table under the monogram, "U. C." and partook of refreshments consisting of strawberry shortcake, ice cream, sandwiches and fruit juice. The fellowship of the festal board reminded us of similar occasions, during college days, when we were guests at parties and picnics, with classmates and friends. Although we are separated by time and distance we often think of the "Golden Cords" that bind us to old Union. We are praying that the Lord of the Harvest will send many more Unionites into this needy field to share the labor and the reward with us.

Wedding

ELAM-OLSON

Word has been received of the marriage of Miss Vera Elam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Elam, of St. Louis, Missouri, to Irwin Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Olson, of Alexandria, Minnesota.

Mrs. Olson is a former student of Union College and Mr. Olson receives his A. B. degree with the class of '29.

The quiet wedding took place in the home of the bride's parents on Easter Sunday, and the bride and groom left immediately for Alexandria, Minnesota.

Their friends at Union wish them a happy married life.

MERE MENTION

The regular meeting of the Kappa Theta society was postponed last week in order that the young women might spend the time on the campus.

A Mother's Day program will be given in the Seventh-day Adventist church at 3:30 o'clock Sabbath afternoon, May 11. There will be a reserved section for mothers.

A Home Commission Convention will be held in College View soon. Elder A. W. Spaulding, secretary of the Home Commission department of the General Conference of Washington, D. C., will be here to take part.

Mrs. W. F. Hahn is chairman of the committee on plans for the monthly faculty entertainment to be given Monday night, May 6.
